FIFTEEN YEARS IN PRISON FOR MORSE

Was a Multimillionaire and Financial King a Year Ago.

'RENZIED FINANCE PROVED HIS RUIN

Banker Curtis, Also Found Guilty, Shown Clemency by the Court.

New York, Nov. 6.—Charles W. Morse, the promoter-banker-financier, who rolled up a fortune of more than $22,000,000 in a little more than ten years only to see practically all of it swallowed up in the panic of last year, is in a cell in the Tombs today facing a term of fifteen years in prison.

Alfred H. Curtis, former president of the National Bank of North America, who was jointly indicted and jointly convicted with Morse, is a free man. His sentence was suspended upon recommendation of the jury and United States District Attorney Stimson. A stay of ten days in execution of sentence was granted Morse and it was expected that application would be made this afternoon to have him released on bail. His counsel decided early in the afternoon, however, that it would be wise to take ample time in the preparations of the papers in the application for bail and an appeal, and as a result Morse went back to the Tombs. It is not believed that any action will be taken before Monday and in the meantime Mr. Morse will remain in the Tombs.

Mr. Morse declines to make any comment on his conviction.

"I haven't a word to say; that is, not now," said he.

A Writ of Error Obtained.

A writ of error in the case of Charles W. Morse was obtained from Judge Lacombe this afternoon. It was then expected Mr. Morse would be released on bail.

The writ of error is returnable December 3rd. On the strength of this writ an appeal and application for bail will be made to Judge Hough. Morse's attorney expects that this application will be denied, and if it is, application will be made to the United States circuit court of appeals for an order to show cause why Mr. Morse should not be admitted to bail.

Scene Was Most Dramatic.

The scene in the court room when sentence was pronounced by Judge Hough was a most dramatic one. The wives of the two prisoners, who had been constant attendants at court during the entire trial, were present early today, to cheer their husbands through the trial.

When the real test came, however, it was the husbands and not the wives who proved the comforters. Morse sat like a stoic when he heard the words that condemned him to prison. There was scarcely the tremor of an eye lid and to those who watched there was no longer even the shadow of a doubt that the "little man" was indeed a man of iron nerve. Curtis too, accepted the news which came to him—good news in his case—with the same lack of emotion that characterized his former chief. But the strain had been too great for the women.

Mrs. Morse Overcome.

As the truth of what Judge Hough's words meant flashed through her mind, Mrs. Morse, who through all the trying days of the trial had preserved an unruffled demeanor, collapsed in her seat, buried her face in her hands and began to sob convulsively. Still weeping, she was led away to an anteroom, where a moment later her husband held her in his arms and sought to console her. Nor was Mrs. Curtis any more prepared for the nervous strain than Mrs. Morse. Mrs. Curtis, within the rail, gazed intently at Judge Hough as he began to speak. She had been ill and several times during the trial had been forced to leave her place in the court room. Today her face was drawn and white, telling of a night of mingled hope and fear while her husband remained away from her behind the bars of a prison cell.

When the judgment of the court, the most favorable for her husband that could be given, was pronounced, she fainted and would have fallen had not kindly hands supported her.

Trial Lasted Three Weeks.

The formal opening of the government's case against Morse and Curtis took place three weeks ago yesterday. The jury pronounced its verdict at 6 o'clock last evening. Even the prosecution scarcely looked for a verdict more favorable (from the prosecutor's point of view) than the conviction of both defendants on the charge of false entries and the additional conviction of Morse on the charge of misapplication of the bank's funds. All sides—even the judge, as some of his remarks during the trial had indicated—expected acquittal on the charge of conspiracy. The jury did acquit both defendants on this charge.

On these three charges the whole case rested. The counts of the indict-

OFFICIAL COUNT WILL BE NEEDED

Close Contests in State Offices Below the Governor.

REPUBLICANS ARE CLAIMING BULK

Official Returns From One-Third of Counties are Not Conclusive.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 6.—Official election returns from thirty counties had been received at the office of the secretary of state up to 10 o'clock this forenoon, and these figures, taken in connection with the unofficial returns from the other sixty-two counties of the state, indicated that these republican candidates have been elected to state offices:

Oscar Hadley, treasurer of state.
John C. Billheimer, auditor of state.
Fred A. Sims, secretary of state.
Fremont Goodwine, lieutenant governor.
J. L. Peetz, state statistician.
Quincy A. Myers, judge of the supreme court.
David A. Myers, judge of the appellate court.

The same figures seemed to indicate that the following democrats are elected:

Walter Lotz, attorney general.
Robert J. Aley, superintendent of public instructions.
Burt New, reporter of the supreme court.

Full Official Count Needed.

The figures are so close, however, that it is believed to be impossible to pick the winners definitely until the last county has been heard from officially.

Fred A. Sims said the official returns from the thirty counties and the unofficial returns from the other sixty-two counties give him a lead of 213 votes of Jas. Cox, his democratic opponent for secretary of state. He said also that some of the republican candidates were running ahead of him.

Oscar Hadley, for instance, had a greater lead over John Isenbarger, his democratic opponent for treasurer of state, than Sims had over Cox.

Billheimer, Goodwine, Myers and Myers also seemed to be running ahead of Sims, though Sims had not made any tabulation of their votes from the thirty counties.

There seemed little doubt that it would be a mixed result in any event, the republicans and the democrats dividing the state offices between them, but no one can tell just what the division will be until all the official returns are received and tabulated.

Democrats Do Not Give Up.

The democrats are still claiming the election of their entire state ticket and are not willing to admit that they have lost out anywhere along the line. At the republican state headquarters, at the Claypool hotel, the claim is made that the entire republican state ticket has been elected with the single exception of governor.

No change has been made in the line-up of the Indiana congressional delegation, as heretofore announced. The democrats have eleven and the republicans two congressmen and there is no possibility of any changes being made in this situation.

The legislature will stand as it was published yesterday, also, according to the best information received at both party headquarters and at the office of the secretary of state. The democrats will have a majority of twelve on joint ballot.

One Contest Likely.

There will probably be a contest for the office of state statistician in case J. L. Peetz, the republican candidate wins over P. J. Kelleher, the democratic candidate by a small plurality. It will be based on a letter received by Mr. Kelleher this morning from George Pence, of Columbus. The letter says:

"For your information I beg to mention that the voting machine used at the fifth precinct of Columbus township, in this county, failed to register your full vote by reason of same fault of the mechanism. The total vote as

GOMPERS STANDS BY HIS COURSE

Labor Leader Will Defend His Political Action in Campaign.

NOT CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

Will Accept Presidency of American Federation if Asked.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Ready to answer before the convention attacks which have been made upon him for his course in the recent presidential campaign, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, left here today for Denver, where the twenty-eighth annual meeting of that organization begins next Monday. In an interview published in the Post today Mr. Gompers is quoted as saying that he is not a candidate for re-election in the sense that he seeks the office, although he would be glad to serve again if it is the will of the convention.

"I am, however, in the American Federation of Labor to stay," said Mr. Gompers, "and if I do not stay as president, I shall stay in the ranks. I believe in the course I have pursued and think I have done everything right. I have even endeavored to give voice to the wrongs labor has endured and I have endeavored to have them righted. I was told at the beginning of the campaign that a gentleman high in the councils of the republican party said he would burn brushwood behind me so fast that I should be eaten up by the fire. I knew I risked that when I began the fight in the cause of labor.

"More criticism than has been directed against me in the last few days undoubtedly will arise. There was a lot of it during the campaign, notably the story that a cabinet position awaited me. I said as early as last August that there was no office within the gift of the people or of the government for which I was a candidate, or which I would accept. I meant that then and I mean it now."

FEWEST DEATHS IN OCTOBER.

Only Eighteen Recorded in Official County Health Record.

According to the official report of E. M. VanBuskirk, secretary of the county board of health, there were only eighteen deaths in this county outside of Fort Wayne during the month of October. This is the fewest number for any month during this year. Two of these deaths were children who suffered from summer diseases.

The same report records that there were fifty births in the same length of time. There was one case of diphtheria, fifteen of typhoid fever, one of scarlet fever, one of smallpox and one of measles.

HELD FOR INVESTIGATION.

Disappearance of McNearney's Calf is Being Looked Up.

Peter Devine was locked up this morning by Detective Lenz on a charge of drunkenness and in the meantime the disappearance of Thomas McNearney's calf is being investigated. Devine worked for the owner of the calf and both disappeared about the same time yesterday. Devine says the calf got out of the lot and ran away and he knows nothing about it.

MARSHALL GIVES BACK THE MONEY

Voluntary Contributions to His Campaign Fund are Returned.

HE HAD RECEIVED OVER $3,000 CASH

Among Scores of Donations Not One Came from a Brewer.

Columbia City, Ind., Nov. 6.—Thomas R. Marshall spent Wednesday and Thursday receiving the congratulatory messages which poured in from all parts of the state from friends and in reading the correspondence which had piled up during the last weeks of the campaign.

At the beginning of the campaign Mr. Marshall made the statement that he would accept no assistance in financing his canvass of the state, but in spite of this, letters were received at his office almost daily during the last two months, either containing or offering money for the expenses of the campaign. The total is nearly three thousand dollars. Mr. Marshall has accepted none of this and is now engaged in returning to the contributors their contributions. The sources from whichthis money came were not even in a single instance saloonkeepers or brewers, nor did any of them consult Mr. Marshall at any time. The largest single offering was one of $500. Large numbers of letters came with $10 bills inclosed and all of these will be answered personally and the money refunded by Mr. Marshall.

SOME VICTORS WILL BE IN OFFICE VERY SOON

Many Changes January 1 as Result of Recent Election.

Less than two months will intervene before a number of the successful candidates in Allen county at the recent election will be enjoying the emoluments of office, for a number of changes will occur early in the new year.

The term of office of the legislative members will begin on January 1, when Senator Fleming will succeed Senator Tyndall, of Adams county. Representative Wells will then begin his new term of two years, and Messrs. Roggen and Shirley will take seats in the lower house of the Indiana legislature, succeeding Representatives Fruechtenicht and Parker.

On the same date Aaron M. Reichelderfer will succeed Jesse Grice as sheriff of Allen county, and Robert E. Kelly will on the same date succeed George L. Ashley as recorder. Coroner Kesler and Surveyor Spindler will each begin their second term of office with the new year.

William Scheimann, elected to succeed himself as treasurer, does not begin his new term of office until Janu-

GERMANY TO SAVE FRANCE'S DIGNITY

Casablanca Affair is Now a Practically Closed Incident.

Paris, Nov. 6.—The crisis between France and Germany, which arose over the arrest of German deserters from the foreign legation of the French army, by the French authorities at Casa Blanca, has seemingly been dispelled over-night. It is now apparent that Germany is ready to abandon her recent demand for the release of the men, and the excuses of the French soldiers and officers who are said to have attacked the German consulate at Casa Blanca. Both Herr Von Schoen, the German foreign secretary, and Prince Von Radolin, the German ambassador in Paris, have changed the tone of their utterances and today they are manifesting a conciliatory spirit, and a readiness to accept the proposal made by France, whereby, with mutual expressions of regret, the entire incident may be referred to arbitration.

The German foreign office expects to receive, in the course of the day, a final decision from Emperor William who is at present in Austria. Now that the question of excuses, which imply censure upon the French soldiers, is out of the way, the French foreign office is confident that the remaining divergencies can be easily adjusted. As a further evidence of her loyal attitude France has voluntarily transmitted to Germany the report on the occurrence made by the police of Casa Blanca.

It is understood here that both Austria-Hungary and Italy advised Berlin to follow a course of prudence.

BREAKING IN NEW ENGINEER.

John Luley, the new engineer engaged to run the new engine soon to be installed at the No. 3 engine house, was out with the new machine at the Lakeside bridge this morning being "broken in" by Chief Hilbrecht and the enginemen of the central station. The new apparatus is to be installed within a very short time.

HOTE ELECTRICIANS HERE.

T. A. Sullivan and Michael Mangan, who have been engaged by H. J. Both Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Mangan have been connected with Mr. Keenan at Scranton, Pa., and Buffalo, and are experts in their line.

FOUR GIVEN UP FOR DEAD.

Illinois Miners Buried Under Appalling Weight of Coal.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 6.—Hope of rescuing four men buried in an explosion in a mine at Rend, Ill., was given up today by the officials of the W. P. Rend company, after repeated efforts to descend into the mine had been made by relays of miners through the night. The explosion was caused by a windy shot and possibly now thousands of tons of coal rest on the bodies of the unfortunate men. Col. W. P. Rend, was in frequent communication with the mine superintendent and announced there was no chance for the men who were in the six hundred foot level, as the fire which is apparent hence the surface cannot be controlled without sealing the mine.

ROOSEVELT MAY RECEIVE A TOGA

Taft's Election Makes Him Willing to Go to the Senate.

MAY BE NAMED TO SUCCEED PLATT

Trip to Africa Would Aid Rather Than Interfere With the Project.

Washington, Nov. 6.—That President Roosevelt may be the successor of Senator Platt in the senate is considered by many in Washington as not at all improable.

Those who regard this as possible declare they have assurance from the president himself that he would not be entirely averse to the acceptance of the senatorial office under conditions as they will be after the 4th of March. So far as is known he had made no open expression on the subject, but he has said within the past year that with Mr. Taft as president, he would not feel the same hesitancy about entering the senate that he would feel with some one in the white house with whom his relations were not as intimate as with Mr. Taft.

His general attitude has been averse to entering the senate because he has felt that as a member of that body he would be called upon to criticise his successor in the presidency and this he would feel a delicacy about doing.

Would Not Embarrass Taft.

He has said, however, that knowing Mr. Taft as he does know him and agreeing with him in all essentials as he does, he is confident that there would not be any occasion for antagonism. He has not gone to the extent at any time of indicating that he would desire the office, even with Mr. Taft as president, but merely has said that with him in that position, his chief reason for not desiring the senatorial position would disappear. Even this much has not been said since there was a certainty of Mr. Taft entering the white house, but the president's outline of his attitude is now recalled as offering a possible solution of the senatorial entanglement in New York and as making an opening for continuance of Mr. Roosevelt's public career.

It is even suggested that the absence of the president on his proposed African hunting expedition need not necessarily stand in the way of his election, but rather that such absence might relieve the situation of embarrassment to him in case his friends should desire to press his name.

QUITS ATHLETIC UNION.

New York, Nov. 6.—James E. Sullivan has declared his resignation from the office of president of the National Amateur Athletic union, which he has held for two terms. Mr. Sullivan was for more than ten years secretary of the union and has been prominent in amateur athletics for more than twenty-five years. Charles H. Carter, of Boston; Everett O. Brown, of the Chicago Athletic club, and H. G. Penniman, of Baltimore, are candidates for the office.

MANY WILL INSPECT SITES.

A large number of the members of the Keklonga Golf club have signified their intention to join the party to inspect the various sites proposed as new homes for the club. The party will leave the Wayne club tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 o'clock in automobiles furnished by the members.

The first meeting of the new board and officers of this club will be held Monday evening. The meeting will be a regular one and only routine matters will be disposed of.

CHURCH RITE SPREADS PLAGUE.

San Francisco, Nov. 6.—Tuberculosis spread through a rite of the church is said to be thinning the population of the Aleutian islands at an alarming rate. Dr. Robert Olsson, of the revenue cutter McCulloch, who arrived yesterday from Alaska, states that 40 per cent. of the natives in the islands are afflicted with consumption. He expressed a belief that the ceremony of kissing the dead is in part responsible for the spread of the disease.

NEW YORK HAS FIRST SNOW.

New York, Nov. 6.—New York had its first snow of the season last night when in the upper part of the town a few flakes sifted in on a fifteen-mile breeze. The mean temperature yesterday and last night was fourteen degrees below the average for the date, making the day the coldest November 5th in the history of the local weather bureau.

HOT RACE ON FOR AN INDIANA TOGO

Kerns Friends Pushing His Claims, But He is Not Taking Part.

FRIENDS GROOMING THOMAS TAGGART

Among Others Mentioned is Our Fat Friend With the Dough—H. J. McGowan.

Indianapolis, Nov. 6.—It was pretty well understood in political circles today that the Indiana campaign for the United States senatorship was well under way and that at least three of the candidates had begun an active canvass for the place. The three understood to be out on the trail now are John E. Lamb, of Terre Haute; L. Ert Slack, of Franklin, and B. F. Shively, of South Bend.

John W. Kern is not making an active canvass, although his friends are ready to push his interests with all their might.

The name of Hugh McGowan was mentioned today in connection with the senatorship contest. Mr. McGowan has been in Europe for some time and is now in Switzerland.

Mr. McGowan is president of the Indianapolis Traction and Terminal company.

Friends of Mr. Kern were saying today that it was their belief that Thomas Taggart, in case he should not seek senatorial honors, would throw his support to Mr. Kern. It is also suggested by the friends of Kern that the latter's candidacy for the vice presidency and the record he made in the campaign just closed will stand him well in hand in the senatorial contest. Mr. Kern, it is pointed out, made an unusually clean fight and he made many friends all over the United States.

QUITS BANK; GOES TO MANUFACTURING ENTERPRISE

H. C. Berghoff Resigns as Cashier of German-American National.

Henry C. Berghoff, former mayor of Fort Wayne, has tendered his resignation as cashier of the German-American National bank to take effect on or before January 1, and will associate himself with his brother, Gustave A. Berghoff, in the active management of the Summit City Soap works. Mr. Berghoff has been cashier of the German-American bank since its organization, and his colleagues in the bank freely accord him credit for having contributed very largely to the wonderful growth and marked success of the German-American.

The business of the soap works has grown to such an extent that for some time past Gustave A. Berghoff, the president of the company, has felt the need of someone upon whom he could rely to share with him the care and responsibility of conducting its affairs, and has at last prevailed upon his brother, Henry, to go in with him. Inasmuch as the ex-mayor has recently acquired by purchase a considerable block of the stock of the soap works, thus materially increasing his holdings, it was natural that he should be asked to associate himself in the management of the company of which he has been vice president for some time past.

The directors of the German-American hate to part with their cashier, but they feel that the opening is so full of promise to Mr. Berghoff that they cannot ask him to ignore it. Gustave A. Berghoff has been one of the most valued directors of the bank since its organization and when he asked that the bank release his brother that he might take him the directors yielded with good grace. Both the Berghoff brothers will continue actively interested in the bank toward whose success they have contributed so much.

As yet nothing has been done toward selecting a successor to Mr. Berghoff. For the next two or three months Mr. Berghoff will divide his time between the soap works and the bank and during this period he will be assisted by his son, Lawrence A. Berghoff, who was for a long time with the Hamilton National bank, of this city, and for the last two years with one of the large Chicago banks.

ment under the several charges were many, and in the strict letter of the statutes the years of imprisonment provided as a punishment run in number into the realm of the fantastic, overspanning consecutive lives of many men, even many generations of men.

In terms practical, each defendant is subject to a minimum sentence of five years' imprisonment on each of the two charges on which the jury found them guilty.

Scene in the Courtroom.

The moment of the announcement of the verdict was an intense one in the courtroom in the federal building. Mrs. Morse was in the room, accompanied by the woman friend who has been with her during most of the sessions of the trial. Curtis' sister was there on the other side of the room. Mrs. Curtis, whose devoted attention and constant presence at every session of the trial had won the sympathy of all the attendants at the trial, had been overcome by the strain this morning and had been obliged to go to her home. There were many other people in the room.

The jury had been out since 3:15 on Friday afternoon, although the members had not been in consideration of the case except during Friday afternoon and early evening and again from 9 o'clock yesterday morning until the time of their arrival in the courtroom to render the verdict.

Twice yesterday, once in the morning and again in the afternoon, they had come into court, the first time for instructions from the court and the second time to hear a repetition of the minutes regarding the testimony of Cashier Wire and Mr. Morse and Mr. Curtis in the matter of the Knickerbocker Trust company loan.

Both Defendants Are Quiet.

When the jurors came in for the last time the room was as still as a church. The foreman announced first that the jury found both defendants not guilty on the charge of conspiracy. On the charge of misapplication of funds he announced the jury had found both defendants guilty and both guilty on the charge of making false entries.

Morse's face, as the foreman pronounced the words slowly and clearly, showed one sharp yet scarcely noticeable tremor then he was the same as he had been during most of the trial, his face calm set.

Curtis instantly labored under the keenest stress and his face showed sharp contrast between his characteristically red cheeks and the whiteness surrounding. He breathed hard, but he did not give way to the emotions which were racking him.

Mrs. Morse sat calm and apparently stupefied. While a tense moment lasted the foreman of the jury added: "We commend strongly to the mercy of the court the defendant Curtis."

Judge Hough said: "I should be remiss in my duty if I did not say something to you, gentlemen of the jury; regarding your verdict. It is customary for jurors to listen attentively. But never in the twenty-four years that my experience covers have I been concerned in trying a case of this character, so complicated and so confining in every sense of the word. You have performed high, painful civic duty."

The jury then was discharged.

Story of Morse's Comet.

Morse first attracted attention as an iceman, then the financial district saw a light and found that Morse was forming a chain of banks. Then he became a man much guessed about, and his operations, large and queer, finally came to smash in the panic.

Morse graduated from Bowdoin college and went into business with his father. He saw money in ice, leased a pond, and got more acreage, became known as "Silent Charley," and prospered. He became president of the American Ice company, took up with Tammany politicians, dropped them, and began the acquisition of a chain of banks. He got together about nine banks in a manner which didn't bear scrutiny when the smash came. He even went to Maine and corralled banks.

Morse was the power in the Bank of New Amsterdam and the Garfield National bank. His operations were the subject of comment in the financial district. The venturesome applauded him for his boldness; the conservatives watched him with alarm. The conservatives feared he was overextending himself.

Banks His Power Swayed.

When the panic came, with the elimination of Morse and the subsequent criminal prosecution, he had a chain of four clearing house memberships. The American Ice company, the American Ice Securities, the latter a holding company for the American Ice company, and the Consolidated Steamship company, which was a merger of the majority of the coastwise steamship companies.

The biggest bank of the Morse string and the one in which he maintained his office was the National Bank of North America. He was vice president and director of this bank. In addition to the banks mentioned, he was vice president and director of the Fourteenth Street bank, he was a large stockholder in the Mercantile National and director in these institutions—the Garfield Safe Deposit company, the New Amsterdam Safe Deposit company, the New York Mortgage and Security company, the New York Produce Exchange bank, the Title Insurance company, of New York, the Van Norden Safe Deposit company, and the Van Norden Trust company.

Morse was the principal in a lot of litigation, civil and criminal. The Dodge-Morse marriage and divorce tangle was one. It came out of his marriage to Mrs. Dodge, wife of Charles F. Dodge, who was a Pullman porter and hotel clerk. Several persons were indicted, but Hummel was the only person prosecuted.

CALIFORNIA BIG FOR TAFT.

San Francisco, Nov. 6.—Returns from 2,559 precincts out of 2,854 in California give Taft 205,215; Bryan, 121,547. Taft's plurality, 83,668.

WASHINGTON 55,000 FOR TAFT.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 6.—Returns from every county in the state completed except in a few interior precincts give Taft 102,430; Bryan, 47,024; Debs, 6,685; Chafin, 2,138 and Hisgen, 160.

BRYAN GETS MARYLAND BULK.

Baltimore, Nov. 6.—Nothing had been heard up to 1 o'clock today from the remaining four counties needed to complete the official count of Tuesday's vote in Maryland, outside of Baltimore City. So far as the returns are canvassed, it seems reasonably certain that the republicans will have one elector and possibly two but it will require the complete official figures to determine the final result.

The official returns from two of the missing counties, Dorchester and Saint Georges were received later in the afternoon and the count was completed in all but five wards in Baltimore city. The result, however, is still in doubt. From the latest figures it seems certain that Bryan will have six electors and, maybe seven. Taft is sure of one. The latter's plurality in the city, so far as the highest elector is concerned has swelled by gains over the unofficial count until it is now certain to reach about 2,400. His plurality in the state will be about 620.

MISSOURI STILL FOR TAFT.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 6.—Supplementary returns today failed to disturb materially Taft's lead of 4,235 votes in Missouri. The state legislature seems fixed at a democratic majority of six on joint ballot, although this is subject to change.

DIED ON FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF MARRIAGE

George Schwartz Was Preparing to Observe His Golden Wedding.

Upon the golden anniversary of his wedding George Schwartz, of 1924 Broadway, died at 5:30 o'clock this morning at the age of 75 years. Five days ago, while preparing to celebrate the anniversary, Mr. Schwartz was stricken by pneumonia, and he passed away upon the day which marked the completion of fifty years of wedded life.

Mr. Schwartz was born in Germany, but came to America and to Fort Wayne in 1852, and had since resided in this city. His only child, a son, died some years ago, and the surviving relatives include the wife who plighted her troth in the marriage ceremony half a century ago, seven grandchildren, a great-grandchild and a sister, Mrs. Charles Jones, of Laporte. The deceased was a member of St. John's Lutheran church.

Funeral services Monday afternoon at 1:30 from the residence and at 2 o'clock from St. John's Lutheran church, Rev. Dannecker officiating.

LEHNEKE.

Mrs. Catherine Lehneke, widow of Frederick Lehneke, for many years a resident of Allen county, died Thursday evening at St. Joseph's hospital from peritonitis, following a surgical operation performed earlier in the week. Mrs. Lehneke was 68 years of age, and since the death of her husband six years ago had made her home with a daughter, Mrs. John Manion, 1306 Huron street.

Mrs. Lehneke was born in Prussia, came to America while yet a mere girl, and in 1862 was united in marriage to Mr. Lehneke, the ceremony having been performed by Rev. H. Klein, then pastor of St. John's Reformed church. The family lived for many years in Lake township, finally removing to Fort Wayne. The deceased was a member of Bethany Presbyterian church and of the Women's Relief corps, and was a well known and most estimable woman, especially kindly and devoted in instances of sickness, accident or other misfortunes among her acquaintances. Five children survive. They are Otto Lehneke, of Pittsburg; Leonard Lehneke, of Aboit township; Clarence and Edward Lehneke and Mrs. Manion, of Fort Wayne. Other relatives include ten grandchildren and a brother and a sister—Capt John Otto, of Auburn, and Mrs. Louise Steiert, of Indianapolis.

The W. R. C. will hold flag service over the remains Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Funeral services Sunday at 2 from the residence and at 2:30 from Bethany Presbyterian church, Rev. J. A. Daly officiating.

MARHENKE.

Emelia Marhenke, 13 years of age, daughter of Mrs. Louise Marhenke, died at 10 o'clock Thursday evening at the family home in Adams township from typhoid pneumonia.

But six weeks ago Henry Marhenke, father of the girl, died of typhoid pneumonia, and three other children in the family are now suffering from the disease. The child had been ill four weeks. Surviving members of the family include the mother and three brothers and five sisters—Ella, Bertha, Malinda, Laura, Zelma, Otto, August and Harold Marhenke.

Funeral services Sunday afternoon privately at the house and at 2:30 o'clock, sun time, from Rev. Stock's church in Adams township.

SCHULTE.

Aurelia Dora Schulte, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Schulte, died at 7:25 o'clock Thursday evening at the family home, 69 Charlotte avenue, from spasms at the age of 6 months and 12 days.

Funeral services Sunday afternoon at 1:30 from the residence and at 2 o'clock from St. John's Reformed church.

FUNERAL NOTICES.

Shoup.—Funeral services of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shoup will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence, 1125 Ewing street.

SOME VICTORS WILL BE IN OFFICE VERY SOON.

ary 1, 1910, which is also the date of the beginning of the new terms of Prosecutor Thomas and Commissioner Wyss. Commissioner-elect Butt will succeed Commissioner Tonkel at the same time.

Cyrus Cline, of Angola, succeeds Clarence C. Gilhams, of Lagrange, as representative in congress on March 4, next.

Mr. Cline's plurality for congress is 2,488, the largest given any representative from the Twelfth district in many years. He carried Allen county by 3,496, Whitley by 159 and DeKalb by 836, while Mr. Gilhams was successful in Noble by 114, Lagrange by 938 and in Steuben by 951.

Two years ago Mr. Gilhams' plurality over Dr. J. W. Morr, of Albion, was 350. Gilhams in 1906 carried Lagrange by 827, Steuben by 848 and Whitley by 31, while Dr. Morr had 1,216 in Allen, 81 in DeKalb and 65 in Noble.

Some interest is being manifested in an analysis of the vote of Allen county this year. Compared with the vote for Roosevelt and Parker four years ago, the totals show that Bryan gained 2,725, while Taft lost 793. Republicans, however, assert that Mr. Marshall's personal popularity swelled the Bryan vote in Allen county. For congress Cline was 2,764 votes ahead of the vote for Mr. Robinson in 1904 and 8,845 ahead of the vote for Dr. Morr two years ago. Mr. Gilhams was 232 votes behind that of Mr. Gilbert four years ago, but 1,471 ahead of his own vote two years ago.

Local republicans were comforted in some measure this morning when Acting County Chairman Hogan received a telegram from Republican State Chairman Goodrich claiming that all the republican state nominees with the exception of governor, had secured pluralities that would pull them through safely.

The First ward is entitled to rank as the premier democratic ward in Fort Wayne on the basis of the returns from Tuesday's election. The First gave Mr. Bryan a plurality of 320. Mr. Taft carried but a single ward in Fort Wayne—the Fifth, where he secured a plurality of 150. The Sixth ward, heretofore republican, dropped over into the Bryan column. The ward pluralities for Bryan were: First, 272; Second, 234; Third, 81; Fourth, 138; Sixth, 29; Seventh, 220; Eighth, 240; Ninth, 95; Tenth, 211.

Gossip today is to the effect that Capt. Eugene B. Smith, of the Fourth ward, is slated for a deputyship under Henry F. Banning, the newly elected trustee of Wayne township, who will take his office January 1.

In the first precinct of the First ward were cast twenty-four ballots which were straight republican on national and state tickets, save for the governorship. Each of the twenty-four indicated a preference for Mr. Marshall as against Mr. Watson. In the thirteenth precinct of the Third ward one voter industriously marked his X inside the large circle surrounding his party emblem at the head of all seven tickets in the field. He was evidently determined to be absolutely neutral and impartial in the matter, and he was. The ballot was thrown out and didn't count for anybody.

BIG BANKER TO TALK HERE.

The meeting of the members of the local chapter of the American Institute of Banking which was scheduled for last evening was postponed upon request of George E. Allen, an educational director of the American institute and one of the best versed men in the country upon the subject of banking. The meeting will be held next Friday evening, a week from tonight, and Mr. Allen will make an address at that time. C. H. Worden, of this city, will also speak.

Secretary George Bittler, of the Fort Wayne chapter, today sent out one hundred invitations to the clerks in the correspondent banks of the Fort Wayne institutions to join the local chapter and also to come to Fort Wayne next week and hear Mr. Allen's talk.

Mrs. Frank A. Lamont, of Jefferson township, who submitted to an operation a week ago at the St. Joseph hospital, is on the road to recovery and will be able to leave that institution within a short time.

DAVID GRIEVES FOR ABSALOM.

Lesson Text—II. Sam. 18: 24-33. Golden Text—Prov. 17: 25: "A Foolish Son is a Grief to His Father."

International Sunday School Lesson for Sunday, Nov. 8, 1908. By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts.

[From The Christian Herald.]

It has always seemed to us that no form of war could be more terrible than civil war, when citizens of the same nation, even brothers of the same family, are engaged in mortal combat. But in the war of rebellion waged by Absalom against his father, King David, we see something worse than civil war. As to the forces in the field, Absalom had a large force, judging from the fact that twenty thousand were killed in battle (II. Sam. 18:7.) King David had with him his old guard of 600 warriors who had been his protectors all of the years he was pursued by Saul. Very probably others of his own people rallied to his standard as he fled from Jerusalem to avoid capture by his enemy, his son! Dean Stanley has said: "There is no single day in Jewish history of which so elaborate account remains as of this memorable flight. There is none, we may add, that combines so many of David's characteristics—his patience, his calculation; we miss only his daring courage. But his God trust was best of all. When his mistaken friends brought along the Ark of God that God's presence might go with him and give him victory, he required them to carry it back to the holy place from which they had taken it; he knew that was not God's way of delivering him. Along the way he was informed that Jonathan's son, Mephibosheth, who had been his beneficiary and had sat at his table, had turned against him; but this afterward proved to be false. Another man, named Shimei, appeared along the way and cast stones and dirt and curses upon King David. David's guard would have thrust the man through, but the king forbade them, for the curses voiced the king's own conscience. But he had repented and so he could say: "The Lord will requite me good for his cursing this day."

When night came on the king and his forces camped at the fords of the Jordan—on the opposite side of the river from where Absalom was encamped. His song that night was: "I will both lay me down in peace and sleep, for thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety." (Ps. 4.) From this prayer of trust has come "the bairns' hymn," "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep." In the morning another prayer song was upon his lips, "I laid me down and slept. I awakened, for the Lord sustained me. I will not be afraid of ten thousands of people that have set themselves against me round about."

The Battle On.

It is being fought in the woods of Ephraim not far distant from Mahanaim, King David's temporary capital. The king sits at the gate waiting for news from the front. A watchman on the roof announces to the porter at the gate that he sees a runner coming, and then a second runner. The battle has been fought, and they are bringing tidings. First one, and then the other, tells of the victory of King David's forces. But there is something dearer than that to King David. He asks each runner, "Is the young man Absalom safe?" They do not say he is dead, but they couch the sad truth in words of loyal devotion to their king: "The enemies of my lord the king, and all that rise against thee to do thee hurt, be as that young man is." If they had told him all, they would have said: "He hangs upon a tree, caught by his hair in the branches, thrust through by the darts of Joab." They spared David this. But victory was turned into mourning for him. Sad laments over Absalom took the place of peans of rejoicing over victory. He went up to the chamber over the gate and wept, and as he went, thus he said: "O my son Absalom! My son; my son Absalom! Would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!" And the brave soldiers who had won the victory stole quietly back into the city as if they were the vanquished. The lament of the king was in all their ears, and it pleased them not. General Joab went in to the king and charged him with loving his enemies better than his friends, and said he would be deserted by his warriors that night if he did not leave off his lamenting, and show himself to the people at the gate, and rejoice with them over their hard-earned victory; and the king heeded the words of Joab, and went down to the gate. And then King David returned to Jerusalem in great triumph over the same way he had fled.

"Is the Young Man Absalom Safe?"

Take the name of Absalom out of this question and put in its place the name of your son, your brother, or any young man who is dear to you. When he leaves you in the morning to enter upon his business day, do you feel sure that it is going to be all right with him? Do you think about him through the day, and pray for him that he may be able to resist all temptation to deal falsely, or to be induced to visit the saloon? And when, after supper, he goes out again, not for business but pleasure, have you anxious thoughts again, and do you lie awake that you may hear his step upon the stair, whether or not it is steady, and do you listen for the clock to strike the hour of his return? Life is so full of pitfalls for the young man that it is not to be wondered at that loved ones grow anxious.

A young man felt that he was being dragged down. His loved ones, the loving ones, lived in a far distant place from the city where the young man had found employment. He thought he would go and see the minister. He found the minister just going out. When he said so, despair settled on the young man's face. And the minister heard the young man mutter to himself, "Well, it is no use; I can't do it. I might as well go back, and go to the devil at once, and be done with it." Instantly the minister turned about and announced to the lad that he had changed his mind, and was going back into the house, and invited him in. Then the young man told the minister his troubles, and how difficult he found it to live a Christian life. The pastor thought of many things, and many ways, but nothing occurred to him that would fit the case. Finally he said to him: "Why do you not make the acquaintance of some nice, respectable families, and visit them, and thus form a companionship which will at once be satisfying and elevating?" The young man looked up into the minister's face a moment, and then at his soiled and patched clothes in which he had done his day's work. He held up his hands for inspection, rough, grimed, in spite of the fact that they had been washed before he started to see the minister. He spoke of his lack of education, and his unrefined and rude manners, and then said: "What nice, respectable family would want me to visit them?" The minister could but recognize the situation, and said to him: "Then come and see me." "No," said the young man, "I would bore you and I am afraid you would bore me. It might do for one or two evenings. I want some place to go that is suitable to me. Where shall I go and what shall I do?" "Well, now," said the minister, "there is the Young Man's Baraca Class in our Sunday School. There are lots of fine young men in that. They have their Bible lessons on Sundays, and on week evenings, at least four evenings in the week, they have studies, debates, lecture courses, sociables, etc." The young man was pleased with the plan and next Sunday was introduced by the minister to the Baraca Class. He liked the businesslike way in which the class was conducted. He was specially pleased when the president in closing the class said: "Now let every Baraca give the Baraca grip to every man in the room," and there followed a friendly handshake, and a five minutes' social. After that the young man did not have anything more to say about "going to the devil." He had found just the right place to fit in. Every Sunday School should have a Baraca class.

Although unconscious of the pleasing charm,
The mind still heads where friendship leads the way;
Let virtue, then, thy partner's bosom warm,
Or vice will lead thy softened soul astray.

The Greek poet Menander, more than two thousand years ago, wrote the sentiment of which the above lines are the translation. Dr. J. M. Buckley, commenting upon this saying, remarks: "If, therefore, you select as a companion a skeptic in religion, one who is licentious in his practices, one who is profane or irreverent in his expressions, or who secretly drinks ardent spirits, or gambles, or loves escapades which if exposed would disgrace those who participated in them, evil results are pretty sure to follow. You will fall into the same practises, you will find it impossible to form associations of a better class, and your reputation will suffer while you are in school or college, and to a considerable extent for a good many years afterward. It is a task too great for any young man to maintain a genuine intimacy with both the moral and the dissolute. His intimates will be true, noble, manly, or they will be reckless and dissolute. Do nothing which, if published just as you did it, would prevent you from getting a good situation if you applied for it, or destroy your father's honest pride in his son."

Absalom Sowed Wild Oats.

It does not say just that in the Bible, but we are not left in doubt as to the fact that he was a reckless sort of a fellow, caring neither for God nor his father, and caring only for men that he might make them his tools. Sowing wild oats is not the trifle it is often taken to be.

John B. Gough said in his last lecture: "I have seven years in the record of my own life when I was held in the iron grasp of intemperance. I would give the world to blot it out; but, alas! I cannot." Then stepping forward with an impressive gesture he added: "Therefore, you men, make your record—" and was silenced by paralysis.

Absalom's end came almost as suddenly, but how unlike the noble Gough in his death! One was cut short in a career of great usefulness and honor—the other in a career of shame and crime. To the grave of Gough visitors bring the tribute of tears and flowers. On the grave of Absalom, even to this day, the visitor and the passer-by cast stones in accordance with the law that a rebellious son should be stoned to death.

HOW TO CURE A COLD.

Be as careful as you can you will occasionally take cold, and when you do, get a medicine of known reliability, one that has an established reputation and that is certain to effect a quick cure. Such a medicine is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has gained a world wide reputation by its remarkable cures of this most common ailment, and can always be depended upon. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. During the many years in which it has been in general use we have yet to learn of a single case of cold or attack of the grip having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Move that Missouri and Maryland quit making so much fuss. It's all over.

Election over, learned pundits have turned their attention to the meaning of "frazzle." Better cut it out. Election settled that, too.

If you want to be of some real help to the new administration and the country pitch right in and aid President-elect Taft to pick a cabinet. Do it—do it now.

Taft in the white house, Sherman in the high chair of the senate and Roosevelt, Bryan and Kern on the floor of that body is a prospect of definite probability, and a likely combination that would make Tillman, LaFollette and Jeff Davis look like a lot of mere mischief makers.

Extremely glad to have the unimpeachable testimony of its frank confession that the things the Indianapolis Star was saying about Thomas R. Marshall during the campaign were invested with a sense truly Pickwickian—that is to say merely partisan political. The Star's apology is due not to Mr. Marshall, but its readers, many of whom it doubtless kept from participating in the general privilege of voting for a mighty good man.

A year ago Charles W. Morse was a magnate of finance whose wealth was rated at over $20,000,000. Today he is a convicted felon under sentence to spend fifteen years in the penitentiary. The erstwhile "ice king" and "steamship king" and otherwise "king" of many a sort was caught short in his frenzied methods of finance. His manipulation and misuse of the funds of a great bank finally tripped him. He has been found guilty in a federal court and heavy penalty imposed upon him. The fashion of justice to mope in executing the penalties in other cases of the Morse kind makes actual punishment of this reckless financier a matter of doubt. The case against him appears to have been clearly made out. The jury that tried him was one of unusual intelligence and of it as a body the trial judge in discharging them said that in all his twenty-four years upon the bench he had been brought into contact with no chosen twelve who had given to the evidence such devoted and conscientious attention. So it may be conclusively accepted that in the verdict of guilt justice has not miscarried. Morse should, as doubtless he will, be a lesson to other financiers of his ilk. The Morses create distrust, start panics and confuse and lower if they do not destroy the morals of business. That is a day of promise when justice grapples with the big criminals.

Mr. Bryan's post-election statement is a frank and manly declaration that shows a soul superior even to disappointment of the greatest and most honorable ambition any human being can cherish and pursue. There is no trace of bitterness and none of regret save that he believes the triumph of the principles upon which the democratic party fought its last great battle would have been better for the republic. What he says of the influence the democratic campaign will have on the policies of government and the sentiment of the people is to the last word true. While it is not for the democratic party to carry forward some of these great principles of justice, the democratic party has forced them to the front and the triumphant party cannot ignore them. Of Mr. Bryan it may simply be said that though a thrice defeated candidate for the presidency he is today one of the most powerful forces for good in the country. Some of the most violent of his political opponents will freely concede at least that much as true of him. As no other man has done, he has stirred the moral sense of the people as it bears upon our political life and institutions. Of Mr. Bryan's future none of his friends need have misgivings, for he himself has none. Whether his party shall ever call him again to hold aloft its colors is at present a matter of no moment. He will have a place in history honorable and secure. No man can hold in devoted and affectionate allegiance a personal following of six or seven millions of freemen during a dozen years of adverse political warfare and leave a perishable fame.

WILL NOT MAKE REPAIRS.

Barber Company Will Do No Work On Streets Paved by Others.

The Barber Asphalt Paving company has declined to do any repair work on any of the streets put down by other companies in the city. This decision grew out of an effort to have the paving removed in making gas connections put into shape by the company, but it refused to accept the job at any price and the board of public works will have to look to some of the other pavers to do this work.

At the regular meeting last night resolutions were confirmed for opening Berry street through to Swinney park and for opening and extending the alley north of Erie street, from Hanna to Schick street.

The acceptance of Brackenridge street was postponed for one week, when it will be taken up with the acceptance of Taylor street.

The assessment rolls were approved for the opening of an alley between Euclid and Savannah streets and for laying cement walks on Antoinette street.

The resolution for a storm sewer in Nebraska will come up for action on next Thursday evening and in the meantime the superintendent of streets will be instructed to clean out all the catch basins in the Nebraska district.

Owing to a strong remonstrance against the opening, widening and extending of Spring street the board decided to postpone action on the resolution for one week.

It was announced that a conference will be arranged between the county attorney, the city attorney and the state's attorney in reference to the driving of piling in the St. Mary's river in the vicinity of Lakeside.

The board decided to advertise for the printing of the council proceedings for the year 1909.

TORE FENDER FROM AN AUTO.

Fire Chief Hilbrecht Had His Troubles Getting to Fire.

A narrow escape from injury to himself and possibly others and a tedious delay at the interurban station marked Fire Chief Hilbrecht's path while answering an alarm from Bloomingdale Thursday evening shortly before 6 o'clock. The transfer corner was badly congested with street cars and in attempting to pass between the J. F. Wing automobile, which was standing on the north side of Main street east of Calhoun, and a Lewis street car, his buggy struck the front fender of the machine and tore it off, at the same time nearly causing the buggy to overturn. Mrs. Wing and her daughter were in the machine at the time, but they were not injured. The delay in front of the interurban depot was caused by the large number of interurban and freight cars that had gathered there for the 6 o'clock departure. The chemical engine was nearly struck by one of the interurbans and several other pieces of apparatus had narrow escapes.

Fortunately the fire was only a small one and the loss is practically nothing. A chimney fire at the home of John Keel at 541 Fourth street had assumed unusual proportions and the department was called.

The department was given another run Thursday evening about 7 o'clock when a pile of waste and refuse at the Kerr Murray works caught fire. An alarm was answered at 11:30 o'clock when the department was needed to prevent the spreading of the fire on the overhead bridge at Gay street. Here again the damage was but slight.

LOCAL MARKET EPITOME.

Potato receipts ruled slightly heavier today on the wholesale produce market than they have in the past few days, but sold at the straight price of 60c per bushel. The demands were not especially active, although the market was well cleaned up.

Corn receipts were also one of the leaders, going at the quoted prices of 55c and 57c per bushel. The demand on chickens had one of its numerous variations, the article selling well at 10c and 11c per pound. The farmers never know when to expect a good demand for poultry nowadays, as it may come at any time. The egg market was steady at the advance of yesterday, with the butter market ruling firm at 15c and 24c per pound. The apple market was a blank, although firm prices were in readiness.

Said G. H. Crouse, of the commission house of Howenstein & Crouse, this morning: "Demands tomorrow will be on chickens, butter and eggs, while potatoes will be slightly easier. Buyers are afraid of getting hold of frosted stock now and are very particular in buying. We expect no material changes in prices for Saturday."

Yergens—Paul.

A pretty wedding took place on Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Paul, of 1241 Wall street, when their daughter, Irma, became the bride of Mr. William L. Yergens. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William Moll, of Emanuel Lutheran church, in the presence of a few relatives and friends. The bride and groom stood under an arch of palms and ferns which had been arranged by the florist, Lanternier. Vases of white chrysanthemums, autumn leaves and smilax afforded other pretty decorative effect. The supper table was done in pink carnations and white chrysanthemums and smilax. Mrs. Fred Kropp, of Kendallville, played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." The bride wore a brown broadcloth suit with waist of cream net and lace. Mr. Yergens is a machinist in the Wabash shops. Both bride and groom are estimable young people with many friends. They will live for the present with the bride's parents.

To Celebrate Golden Wedding.

Dr. Harriet Stemen Macbeth left yesterday for Kansas City, Mo., where she will attend the golden wedding of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Christian B. Stemen, at their home, 626 Oakland avenue. Dr. and Mrs. Stemen made their home in this city for years and their many friends here are interested in the coming anniversary of their fifty years of wedded life. From 8 to 10 o'clock tomorrow morning Dr. and Mrs. Stemen will receive their friends. Mrs. Stemen was Miss Lydia Enslen before her marriage. To Dr. and Mrs. Stemen have been born seven children, five of whom are physicians. They are Dr. Katherine S. Hughes, Kansas City; Dr. George C. Stemen, Denver, Col.; Dr. Charles M. Stemen, Kansas City; Dr. Wm. E. Stemen, Denver, Col., and Dr. Harriet Stemen Macbeth, of this city.

Dr. C. B. Stemen is doubtless the oldest living physician and surgeon of Allen county. He was dean of the Medical college, a trustee of Purdue university and for thirty years was surgeon for the Pennsylvania company. Both Dr. and Mrs. Stemen enjoyed the friendship of hundreds of people in this city and county and his prominence as a physician and surgeon also led to a large acquaintance in the state. Dr. and Mrs. Stemen left a few months ago for Kansas City to make their home nearer their children.

Hay and Grin Shippers Preparing for McClure Meeting.

A meeting of the hay shippers of northeastern Indiana was held in the Commercial club rooms last night to consider matters of interest to the hay trade. In this connection a committee consisting of Thos. P. Riddle, Fort Wayne, Ind.; George Arnold, Bluffton, Ind., and Maurice Niezer, of Monroeville, Ind., was appointed with instructions to solicit the co-operation of the several farmers' institutes of this community in arranging for a date for a lecture by Mr. H. B. McClure, scientific expert of bureau of plant industry of the agricultural department, Washington, D. C. November 30 is set as a prospective date.

The government has commissioned Mr. McClure for work in behalf of the farmers, and the shippers realize that any benefit received by the farmers will revert to their benefit. It is this which prompts their interest in the coming of Mr. McClure.

Shirt Waist for Winter.

By Mrs. Jane Ford.

7 SIZES 32 TO 44 BUST

Women who are tired of the inconvenient shirt waist that closed at the back will welcome the pretty new model with front closings. The pattern for the one illustrated is cut in seven sizes, from thirty-two to forty-four inches bust measure. To copy it for the average woman requires two and three-quarters yards of material thirty-six inches wide, or two and one-eighth yards forty-four inches in width. The design provides for both short and long sleeves, but unless there is some special reason why the short sleeves should be preferred, I would advise the use of the full length ones, as this winter the latter are considered better style.

The popular tailored waist is by no means the severe garment that it was last season. Not only is it given a decided feminine touch by the materials employed in its construction, but all kinds of jabots, bows, frills or sheer linen and lace are in evidence as neck finishes.

This model will be equally effective developed in tub goods, such as linen or madras.

If, however, the more dressy fabrics are selected and the waist is to complete a coat suit one already has, a few bands of cloth like the suit used as a trimming will give a smart effect. For instance, a very pretty appearance can be obtained by arranging a double set of straps over the shoulders, which button at the waist line over a cloth belt and finish in a point four or five inches below the waist.

The vertical straps may be held in place both back and front by horizontal straps, the whole ornamented and made to look rich by a little embroidery of a contrasting color.

A pattern is not required for the strap, as they are plain, straight pieces of cloth about one and one-quarter inches wide when finished, and they are arranged in a becoming fashion.

The trimming should be carried out on the sleeves by using three straps equal distance apart and five-eighths of an inch in width, stitched the full length of the outside of the sleeve.

HONEST BUSINESS NEED HAVE NO FEAR

President-Elect Taft Says Business Men Within Law are Secure.

Cincinnati, Nov. 6.—Speaking to the Cincinnati Commercial club, of which he has been a member for fifteen years, President Elect Taft last night brought every member of the club to his feet in his address sounding the keynote of prosperity for the country for the next four years.

"Every business man who is obeying the law may go ahead with all the energy in his possession, every enterprise which is within the statutes may proceed without fear of interference from the administration, when acting legally, but all interests within the jurisdiction of the federal government may expect a right enforcement of the laws against dishonest methods," was the keynote of what Mr. Taft said.

The speech which Mr. Taft delivered here last night created a profound sensation among the substantial business men of the city, who are members of the club. They had planned the dinner long before the result of the election could be known, and they arose as one man to the sentiments their guest expressed. The speech, which was preceded by words of friendship and neighborly felicitation on the part of Mr. Taft, brought out the human side of the next president in a remarkable manner.

Subject to His Managers.

Mr. Taft told, in a way which no one has written of, the human side of his campaign.

"I have been the subject of a coterie of bosses," he declared, with the greatest good humor, "of which the demands left me no duty but to respond from 6 o'clock in the morning to midnight, to the calls of the populace—and if I did not respond the crowd, after one minute made a mighty shout, 'Hurrah for Bryan.'"

In beginning Mr. Taft admitted that it might not have been so easy to smile last night if the telegrams of congratulation which passed between Lincoln and Cincinnati yesterday had been originated in this city instead of the home of the great commoner.

"Seriously," he declared, "the indications are already apparent the hopes which I entertain are that the business communities and the investors of foreign nations and among our people will take heart in carrying out the great enterprises which have been projected and which must be carried to a determination if the country is to reach its full meed of prosperity and attendant business.

To Point Lines of Legality.

"Business men are to be shown the lines of legality and are to be directed in keeping within the lines of legality, which lines have been emphasized during the last four years. Business men shall know that they are to conform to the laws upon the statute books and that no favors are to be expected for those who break the laws.

"This shall be so that the men who conduct a legitimate business may understand that the government is back of them, and does not intend to do anything to interfere with their legitimate advancement."

After the applause which met this declaration had subdued, Mr. Taft added:

"It is a question of the definite knowledge of the statutes and of their clear understanding which shall make the honest progress of our business possible. And that is, in my belief, all that is necessary to make that progress substantial and enduring."

Mr. Taft apologized for directing his words into such a serious discussion.

And Some May Say "Poor Bill."

"I know the difficulties that will arise in my new care, and," he added, "I know that there will be questions which will arise that I do not know of now and that times will come when many of my friends here will shake their heads and say, 'Poor Bill!' but all I can ask is for suspension of judgment until the situation may be understood. My decisions will rest upon the principles of sound and honest business policies which I have outlined. Details will, I am sure, explain what may appear to be errors of judgment and mistakes."

What Mr. Taft said preceding his plain business talk pleased the club immensely. He told of the many policies which had been dictated to him by the local committeemen during the campaign and then of the whole object of being president, which was to endeavor a fair opportunity and to warn with knowledge and prosecute with vigor every apparent effort to evade the laws and every scheme to affect prosperity by dishonest business methods.

The club of which Mr. Taft was the guest tonight was also his host at a dinner which he attended just before leaving the United States to become governor of the Philippines as the appointee of President McKinley. The club had as its guests tonight members of similar organizations from Chicago, St. Luis, and Kansas City.

GARRETT COMING TO GO AGAINST THE MIAMIS

The Visitors Will Present Strong Lineup in the Battle.

Greatly strengthened since their defeat at the hands of the Miami eleven in what was the first game of the season between both teams, Garrett will come to Fort Wayne Saturday afternoon and will endeavor to regain its lost laurels. The Garrett aggregation, which has been together for several years, is doubly stronger this season than ever before owing to the addition of a number of big fellows on the line who are both beefy and speedy. "Doc" Allman, who has acted as coach for the team this season, had considerable experience in college athletics and expects his charges to be on an equal if not better footing with the Miamis in the coming game. Coach Hutzel has announced a number of changes in the Miami line-up through which he hopes to give it more strength.

On Saturday, Nov. 14, Winona Technical Institute will be brought to Fort Wayne for a game and there will probably be another contest between the Miamis and the Defiance Company G team which has not been defeated in five seasons and has had its goal line crossed but twice. Ohio Northern will be the attraction on Thanksgiving afternoon.

OUGHT TO BE HARD GAME.

Third Annual Between Notre Dame and Indiana Tomorrow.

Judging from the results of the last two games, the third annual in Indianapolis tomorrow should be a hard-fought one. In 1906 Indiana had "Bunny" Hare, "Heze" Clark, Bloom, Wade and others to oppose such Notre Dame stars as Bracken, Munson, Sheehan and others. When these men were lost by graduation it was thought that neither school would be able to turn out a strong eleven for 1907. But last year both were up to their former standard. Indiana's stars were Tighe, Heckaman and McGaughey, while Captain Calliferate was Notre Dame's best. All these men are lost, but others just as good are filling their shoes. The two schools were even last year, and Indiana has lost more men by graduation than has Notre Dame. The casual observer might think Notre Dame much the stronger for that reason.

Another point in Notre Dame's favor is her record in high scores this season. The Catholics have twice exceeded sixty points in a single game, one of the scores running close to ninety. Their best game, however, was that with Michigan, which was lost, 12 to 6. Indiana has not scored more than three touchdowns in any one game, but the crimson has been up against strong big nine elevens like Chicago, Wisconsin and Illinois, all of western championship caliber. Therefore again the two teams seem to be evenly matched. The even distribution of strength together with the rivalry that exists between the two schools insures a fast and close contest Saturday.

CENTRALS TAKE TWO GAMES FROM THE SUPERBAS

Beginners Make Creditable Showing at St. Mary's.

At St. Mary's alleys last night the Centrals took the Superbas down the line in two of the three games in the league series and, although the scores were generally low, the players are most all new men and have just started at the game. Two double centuries were registered during the engagements. L. Beuter was top man with 211 and Charley Brink came second with 201. The scores follow:

The Vanderbilt fortune, once the greatest financial power in the United States, probably amounts, at the present moment, to not far from $300,000,000. Of this, William Kissam Vanderbilt, who controls the majority of the family properties, holds in the neighborhood of $100,000,000, while twelve or fifteen descendants of the commodore share among themselves the remaining $200,000,000.—McClure's Magazine for November.

PLAYERS PLACED ON INELIGIBLE LIST FOR 1909

National Commission Disciplines Big League Ball Tossers.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—The national commission did the expected thing yesterday when announcement was made in Cincinnati of its decision putting nine White Sox regulars and subs on the ineligible list until they can square themselves for disregarding the commission's warning against playing in Logan Squares in this city last month.

The players affected are Pitchers White, Owen, Smith, Altrock and Flynn, Catcher Frank Roth and Infielders Donohue, Arz and Purtell. This was the first intimation that Roth was considered an asset of the Chicago American league club, but apparently President Comiskey has retained and renewed the option secured when Frank helped out in the fall of 1906.

The ruling in regard to the White Sox offenders against national commission rules was the same as that previously made in the case of the Washington players who took part in the barnstorming series with local independent clubs in opposition to the world's series contests. The nine Sox players stand suspended from organized base ball and President Comiskey is requested not to enter into any form of contract with them for next season until the disability against them has been removed by the commission.

The list includes only the Sox who took part in the game with the Logan Squares. One or two who played only against other local clubs, which are not known to harbor ineligible players, escaped punishment, it being the commission's opinion apparently that the Sox had a right to play in their own territory after the close of their own season, so long as they did not play ineligible teams. Billy Sullivan was one of the Sox barnstormers who ducked the Callahan tangle.

As a result of this edict President Comiskey will be restrained from signing the nine players on the list until they have made application for reinstatement and have been granted it, probably on payment of a stiff fine per capita. There is no edict, however, against Comiskey's carrying on a correspondence with his players and reaching an agreement with them as to their salaries for next season if he wants them for the team.

There is no question, of course, but that all will be reinstated eventually and that the playing strength of the Sox will not in any way be impaired, although some of their bank rolls may be.

The worst feature of the tangle will be the rule which prevents a club owner disposing of a player who is not in his service or is ineligible for any reason. Under that regulation Comiskey will be detained from trading off any of the ineligible nine, and, of course, that disposes, for the present, of the reported deal with Washington in which Frank Smith, deserter, has been mentioned. This rumor is farther blocked by the fact that the Washington club also has a bunch of ineligibles on its reserve list, who could not be traded to the Sox even if Smith were in good standing.

Local base ball circles were somewhat stirred yesterday by the suspicion that President Murphy's trip to Cincinnati had more to do with base ball than with the congratulation of President-elect William H. Taft. There were many who professed to believe the trip was largely for the purpose of making good his threat to arrange a deal with Garry Herrmann for Manager Frank Chance. This was strengthened by the reported efforts of the Chicago club to secure Third Baseman Mowery.

Despite the breach between Cub magnate and manager, there is as much chance that the peerless leader will manage the Cincinnati Reds next season as there is that the other will be inaugurated president of these United States of America on March 4, 1909.

S.S.S. NATURE'S CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

The conditions and causes which produce Rheumatism all suggest a healthful vegetable remedy as the surest and safest cure. The disease is brought about by the accumulation of uric acid, an irritating, pain-producing property in the blood. This causes a weakening and souring of the circulation which then becomes unfit for nourishing the body, while the deposits of uric acid in the nerves, muscles, joints and bones produce the pain and agony of Rheumatism. To treat the trouble with medicines containing potash or other strong minerals, is simply adding another poison to the already weak, diseased blood, sapping it of its remaining vitality, and perhaps in the end making a physical wreck of the sufferer. The one safe and only cure for Rheumatism is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy for this disease, made entirely from healthful vegetable ingredients extracted from the roots, herbs and barks of the forest and fields. S. S. S. goes down into the blood and removes every trace of the cause of Rheumatism, cleauses and purifies the circulation, and restores health and comfort to those who are suffering from this painful disease. There is but one way to be sure you are not dosing your system with mineral medicines, and that is to take S. S. S. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free.

Story Corner of Ball Players

Of all the consistent swat artists that ever played the great American game, none of them, perhaps, was the equal of Hans Wagner, the big German ball tosser of the Pittsburg club, who, by the way, is reputed to be receiving the largest baseball salary ever paid to any major leaguer. It is whispered that Wagner has a three-year ironclad contract which calls for $12,000 a season, which he will receive whether he is ill or well.

Wagner is one of the great students of the game, and perhaps this is the reason that he classes up so high. At any rate he is never too tired to think up schemes and to try experiments to increase his proficiency as a baseball player. While his teammates are going to places of amusement and engaging in other relaxing pursuits, the big German ball player is busy at the experimenting business.

Last season there was a rumor among the members of the team that Hans had invented a magic bat that was guaranteed to increase a man's hitting anywhere from 50 to 100 per cent and naturally every one was interested in trying to find out about the magic stick. None of them cared to appeal directly to Wagner, as he is one of those kind of men who like to see every one mind his own business, and he is also one of the quickest to hand this advice to any one "butting" in.

One day a group of the Pittsburg players got to talking about Wagner's reputed invention, when Leever, the pitcher, asked Fred Clarke, the captain-manager of the team:

"Do you know anything about that bat invention of Wagner's, Fred?"

"No," drawled Clarke, in that deliberate way he has of speaking: "he's keeping that bat dark."

"But how can he keep it dark?" excitedly broke in Leach, the third baseman.

"Why, by painting it black," cried Clarke, with a grin, as he dashed for safety to the clubhouse.

Billy Sullivan was in 1901 catching ball for the Dubuque (Iowa) club, and the season out there at that particular period was none of the best from a financial standpoint, and it finally got so bad that the clubs in that league had to play exhibition games with rap clubs scattered throughout Iowa or adjoining states. This necessitated much traveling by the spike-shoe lads. The adventures they met on the way were varied enough to destroy any possible monotony that was liable to arise.

Sullivan was talking one time regarding his experiences during the barn-storming days above referred to, when Joe Cantillon, the stocky manager of the Washington club, came up to where the group was talking, and as Joe is a native of the section of the country over which Billy traveled he butted in with the following:

"You say that you played in Waterville, eh? Well, how did you like that town?"

"Why, the first time I saw the place I was simply carried away with it," said Sully.

"You were?" queried Cantillon, whose face lighted up with pleasure at Billy's assertion.

"That's what I was," reiterated Sullivan, as he slyly winked at Davy Altizer, "for you see, Joe, we hadn't been in the town ten minutes before the worst cyclone ever known in those parts struck that dinky burg and scattered it all over the surrounding counties."

Spiegel—Korn.

Miss Lillian Korn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Korn, of Fairfield avenue, and Mr. Christian Spiegel were married at the bride's home on Thursday evening. Rev. H. P. Dannecker performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives of both bride and groom. Miss Ernestine Spiegel, violinist, accompanied by Mr. G. E. Spiegel, played the wedding music as the bride and groom entered the parlor, which was beautifully decorated with palms and cut-flowers. The bride looked handsome in a gown of white French lawn, elaborately trimmed in valenciennes lace and carried a large bouquet of chrysanthemums. After the congratulations an elaborate dinner was served at a prettily decorated table in the diningroom. Instead of a wedding trip the brie and groom will go housekeeping at once, in their own home, at 827 West Creighton avenue, which is completely furnished and ready for them.

The bride is a pretty and charming young woman, with a wide acquaintance in Fort Wayne, which has always been her home. The groom is a progressive young business man connected with the grocery of G. E. Spiegel & Sons, of Broadway.

Plauen, Germany, Nov. 6.—The most violent earthquake ever experienced here terrified the inhabitants of the city at 5:40 o'clock this morning. Houses were shaken and the people fled, panic stricken, into the streets. The shock, which lasted for several for several minutes, was accompanied by sharp explosions and thunderous rumblings in the earth. Sixty or seventy earthquake shocks have been felt here daily for the past week. They are now becoming less frequent, but more violent. The temperature of Medicinal Springs in the vicinity has increased fifteen degrees.

IN THE THEATERS

"The Man of the Hour" is one of the coming attractions at the Majestic theater. It will be presented on Tuesday, Nov. 10. In the play the great political graft system is again brought before us in a forceful way. The scene is laid in a large city where an honest mayor has been nominated.

The story is said to involve the fortune of both the heroine and her brother, and the fact is held over the head of the mayor by way of forcing him to the will of his party's boss. Many other powerful influences are brought to bear, but the mayor resists them all. The fact of his resistance is then used to show the heroine that he is opposing the railway franchise for the purpose of personal gain, even at the cost of the fortune of herself and all her friends. This has the effect of breaking the engagement between the mayor and the heroine, Dallas Wainwright, and influencing her to accept the advances of Mr. Gibbs, one of the promoters of the franchise graft.

The company which Wm. A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer are sending is said to be of exceptional strength.

Interest keeps up in the presentation of "Mr. Barnes of New York" by Our Own Stock company at the Majestic and the audiences are large at each performance. The play pleases and the company continues to give the same high order of work that has been so noticeable in previous performances. The play will hold the boards the rest of the week. The company is preparing the play written from an Indiana story, "The House of a Thousand Candles," for next week's offering. The book was written by Meredith Nicholson and has been very popular, so interest in the play will be likely to exceed that shown in some previous plays. "Charley's Aunt," an old and delightful farce, will be given a little later, probably week after next.

"Way Down East," William A. Brady's familiar and thrilling play, will be presented at the Majestic on Monday, Nov. 9. The popularity of this rural drama never seems to be on the wane. Year and year the play is put on and there are always many people who want to see it again and those who have always heard of its beauty and the sweetness of the story, who have heretofore missed the performance, are as anxious to see the entertainment as if it were the first appearance. There will no doubt be another large audience to witness the performance of next Monday evening. The company which will be seen here is the week stand organization, and it is only through a change of booking that they have six nights open between Cincinnati and Chicago, one of which will be filled in this city. Miss Phoebe Davis will appear in her original role of Anna Moore, and will be supported by many others of the original cast.

At the Lyric.

Interest in the Lyric seems to be on the increase and the present bill of entertainment has won many highly complimentary comments from those who have seen it. There is something doing that pleases from the overture to the end of the kinodrome show. Tomorrow the children will have their chance to see the wonderful educated seals do their tricks and will find equal delight in hearing the musical acts and seeing the roller skating of the Adams brothers. The headliners for next week will be the much touted Brown brothers, who were booked to open the Lyric.

PUMPKIN PIE.

Take away your fancy puddings with their highly flavored sauces,
And your rainbow colored ices, all so tempting to the eye.
And your cakes of many layers crowned with wreaths of sugar roses,
Like the flowers of wax our parlors used to boast in days gone by.
For these dainties are not in it for a minute when beside them.
Lo! A disk of brown and yellow, thick and luscious, we espy,
And we reach with eager longing and the appetite of twenty
For a creamy golden segment of dellicious pumpkin pie.

All the dreams of home and mother that the dust of years have covered,
While as fortune's battered football we were always on the fly,
Come to soothe our ruffled spirits with the vision of a farmhouse
In a green and quiet valley and beneath a cloudless sky.
There the big round pumpkins ripened in the sunny fields of autumn,
And we watched the stems each morning till we found them brown and dry.
Then we plucked the globes in triumph,
and we bore them to the kitchen,
Where they soon were sliced and ready to be baked in pumpkin pie.

Oh, the Briton loves plum pudding, and the French delight in truffles,
And for sauerkraut and sausage does the exiled Teuton sigh,
And a dish of macaroni pleases most the dark Italian,
While for bowls of oatmeal porridge all the Scottish babies cry.
But to every son of freedom, whether born in old New England
Or beyond the rugged Rockies or the proud Sierras high
Or among the cane and cotton and magnolias down in Dixie,
There is nothing quite so tasty as a piece of pumpkin pie.
—Minna Irving in New York Press.

Shopping.

"Yes, madam, I paint portraits."
"Well, if you'll give me your price list and a few samples I'll talk them over with my husband."—Browning's Magazine.

Too Suggestive.

Wimbleton—Hello, Simpelton! How did you enjoy your visit to the insane asylum the other day?

Simpelton—Oh, so-so. It was all right enough, I guess.

Wimbleton—Well, you don't talk as though you were much impressed with it. Did you give the superintendent my note of introduction?

Simpelton—Yes, I gave it to him.

Wimbleton—Well, what did he say?

Simpleton—Oh, he just looked at me and said, "Make yourself at home."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Heard In the Country Store.

Silas—Hello, Cy. What's new down Frog Creek way?

Cyrus—Haven't you heard? Gee! Zeke Weatherby is the proud pa of a youngster that weighs twenty pounds.

Silas—Do tell! That's odd. Anything else?

Cyrus—Yep! Hank Ryetop is the proud pa of twins. Reckon you'll say that's odd too?

Silas—No, by heck; that's even.—Chicago News.

A Definition.

"Now, Johnnie, you may define the word taxidermist," said Miss Rodd.

"A taxidermist is a feller that runs a taxicab," said Johnnie.

"No, dear," said Miss Rodd. "A taxidermist is a man who stuffs birds. Have you never seen one?"

"Yessum," said Willie. "Our doctor came to dinner last night, and the way he stuffed turkey showed that he must be a taxidermist."—New York Herald.

Considerate.

Mrs. Mimms—Mary, it was 1 o'clock this morning when you got in. I heard you.

Mary—Well, ma'am, if I was you I'd take something to make me sleep better. I took my shoes off down in the kitchen and didn't make no more noise than a cat would. I've been kind of worried about you for a good while.—Punch.

Some Satisfaction In That.

Mrs. Hewligus—You say that if a burglar wants to get into the house he'll get in in spite of everything you can do to keep him out. Then what is the use of your taking so much pains to fasten all the doors and windows?

Mr. Hewligus—I want to give him all the trouble I possibly can, blame him!—Washington Herald.

A Murderous Maid.

First Admirer—She looked daggers at me.

Second Ditto—She cut me dead.

Third Ditto—Well, I must say, when she came out in that stunning rig she paralyzed me.

Fourth Ditto—I think she's just killing.—Baltimore American.

What Happened to the Phone.

Kathryn (fluttering in)—I'm so glad I've found you home, dear. I tried to call you up, but central said your phone was out of order.

Gladys (weakly)—I suppose it is. About an hour ago Jack called up father and asked him for my hand.—Puck.

According to statistics recently issued by the executive committee of the Grape Growers' association, for the first time California's wine production was greater than that of Germany last year. California produced 55,000,000 gallons of wine, while Germany produced only 50,160,000 gallons.

the food that lifts you out of the dumps and gives you life and energy for the day's work. Try it a few mornings with hot milk or cream and notice the difference. Your grocer sells it.

TONE UP THE STOMACH

Get Rid of the Gas, Headaches and Dizziness.

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, some loathe the sight of food. Often there is a feeling as of weight on the chest, a full feeling in the throat. Sometimes the gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has heart disease. Sick headache is a frequent and distressing symptom.

A very delicate stomach requires easily digested food but nature never intended that the food should be digested before it is eaten. The stomach must be strengthened to perform its own work and what it needs is not food already digested but a tonic. The processes of digestion are controlled by the blood and nerves, and medical science has produced no better digestive tonic than

POKER PARTY ATTRACTS THE ATTENTION OF POLICEMAN

Raid is Made on Room in Rear of Joe Notestine's Saloon.

A poker party in the rear of Joe Notestine's saloon on Harrison street attracted the attention of the police this morning and at 3 o'clock Captain Kelly led an attack on the place and captured five men, who were taken to police headquarters. A deck of cards and some chips were also taken in the raid.

The man who ran the game gave his name as Johnny Jones and he was fined $40 and costs, which was paid out of his bail money. The police said they did not know the man's right name. One fellow who gave the name of Harry Hall was not lucky and he went to jail under a fine of $15 and costs. Only one of the party, an old fellow named Wilkerson, who formerly kept a saloon on the south side, was known to the police.

Tramps Rounded Up.

Because a tramp who went to Brookside Thursday begging for money became abusive when it was refused him and tried to enter the house by force the police made a round-up of half a dozen or more of the fraternity last night and they were on trial in the city court today. They were not identified and as they gave good accounts of themselves they were let go with instructions to get out of town as soon as possible.

Meat Sellers Are Held.

Leslie Cartwright and Harry Fashbaugh, two of the meat sellers employed in the Leikauf establishments, were arrested and held until Tuesday morning for trial. Their bonds were fixed at $25 each and they were not allowed to go on their own recognizance as they were the first of the week.

Wants the Children.

Gertie Cress was picked up for loitering, but the principal reason for which she was arrested was to obtain possession of her two children who, it is charged, have an improper home.

WALLS FELL WITH A CRASH

Mr. Young's Loss.

The jewelry store of J. H. Young presented a sorry sight after the collapse of the walls. The large plate glass window next the alley on the north was shivered, and bricks, mortar and pieces of stone were hurled through the windows on the north side of the brick building. Show cases were smashed and silverware, glassware, clocks, watches and jewelry were badly damaged by the avalanche of missiles as they came hurtling through into the building. Mr. Young said it would be impossible to give anywhere near an estimate, but said the damage would greatly exceed $2,000, to say nothing of the loss of business which would be entailed upon him at the approach of the holiday season. Both Mr. Young and Mr. F. E. Ashbaugh, who was employed at the bench, consider themselves fortunate in having felt the imminent danger and leaving the building in time to escape with their lives. Mr. Ashbaugh's seat was almost buried in a pile of brick and mortar. A large telephone pole standing in the alley was broken in the middle and still stands resting its broken part on the fire escape along the side of the jewelry store, and supported only by the wires attached to its cross-beams.

VOTES FOR DEBS MISSING.

Did Not Show In the Returns of His Own Precinct.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 6.—The official canvass of the vote finished yesterday shows that Eugene V. Debs did not get a vote in his own precinct, although it is known that a number of socialists voted the straight ticket in the precinct.

Debs says: "I voted the straight socialist ticket and so did my brother. I know absolutely that those two socialist votes were cast. There were a number of men who went into the voting place with my badge on, and I am very sure that they, too, voted the socialist ticket.

"There must have been something wrong with the machines. I do not believe there was anything the matter with the election officials at that precinct because I know and like them. But in some way socialist votes were cast there which were not registered.

A voting machine was used in the voting place and the failure to record the socialist votes is causing much comment. Debs' vote in the county was 690, which was twice that of 1904. The demonstration for him Monday night and especially the long parade of voters wearing the party badge led to the belief that the total vote would be above a thousand.

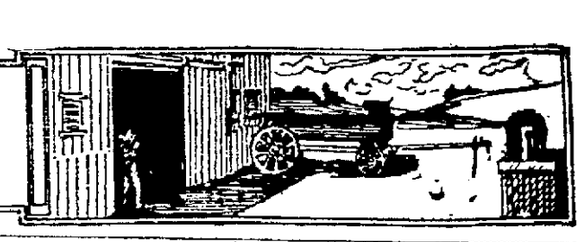
NEWS AND VIEWS OF FARMERS



DEATH POISON IN STING

Insects Whose Bites Cause Loss of Live Stock and Often Persons as Well.

BY PROFESSOR R. A. GEARE.

NATIONL Museum, Washington, D. C.

As a rule only the female insect inflicts a wound, the sting being in reality a modified ovipostor.

Other insects merely pierce the flesh wih their beaks, like mosquitoes and kissing bupete, but in these both sexes are equally guilty of annoying man.

A very poisonous group of insects are the cowkillers. They are usually of a brilliant red color and their sting produces violent inflammation, fever and much lameness. Their poison is said to be violent enough to kill cattle, hence their name.

The wound inflicted by the centipede is perhaps as severe as that of any insect. No poison glands lie in the base of its first pair of legs. The fangs are very strong and the bite is dangerous.

The most formidable centipedes are nearly a foot long.

Some of the spiders and scorpions can inflict a bite that will endanger a man's life.

In this class are a large number of parasitic spiders, most of which feed on animal matter and kill their prey by means of peculiar organs situated either on the anterior or posterior end of their bodies.

In the southern regions tarantulas or bird spiders are much dreaded. They do not spin webs, but lie in wait for their victims, pouncing on them with powerful leaps. The most poisonous of this class is the tarantula.

It is believed by many that there is no human disease which the tarantula's bite cannot produce, and the victims of their poison manifest their condition by crying, laughing or dancing, which latter manifestation has given the Spanish name, tarantula, to this spider.

Victims of their bites, it is said, cannot bear to look at anything blue or black, although red and green seem to be pleasing colors.

The venom of scorpions is dangerous in proportion to their size, age, the condition of irritation, the temperature, etc. The sting of some of the South American scorpions causes violent fever, numbness, tumors on the tongue and dimness of sight.

One authority writing of their habits sates that they leave their retreats at dusk, running with tail raised over their backs and pointing forward.

They live chiefly on spiders and other large insects, which they grab with their claws and kill with their sting.

During the day they hide under stones, in rotten wood and other dark places.

They are fond of warmth and often enter houses, hiding in beds, clothing and shoes. The pain caused by their sting is quickly moderated by application of liquid ammonia or even tobacco ashes, while a small dose of pecacuanba will gradually overcome the faintness.

The effect of the sting diminishes with repetitions and if stung often enough one may become practically immune.

ALL AROUND THE FARM

The lazy farmer who stacks new clover on the site of the old stack is breeding worms and trouble.

A young man living in Wisconsin wrote us that he thought of going to work there. And that same week the Dakotas and Minnesota were crying aloud for you harvest hands and railroad fare free! Sometimes men are careful to look in the wrong direction when seeking a job.

When I was a boy on the farm my boss used to make my hair stand on end by going in front of the mower and reaper to oil and make adjustments while the team was unattended. One day the horses ran away and the boss has limped through life ever since. I never forgot that awful bloody lesson.

The farmer who invites his city friends to go out and shoot quail on the place this fall would better present them with a couple of dozen shot on the farm of some other man who prefers insects to the birds.—John Greenlough.

A WONDERFUL MILCH COW

This is one of the most prolific milkers in America. She is a Holstein, Bessie Hamilton 2d, and is owned by A. A. Hartshorn of New York state. She is 4 years old. In seven days she produced twenty-four pounds of butter and in thirty days 100 pounds. When this record was made two years ago it was the largest thirty-day butter record ever made by a cow under 4½ years old. Bessie is homely in the extreme so far as shape is concerned, but her skin and hair are of wonderfully fine texture.

A BIT OF FARM PHILOSOPHY

Not all the asses we see at the fair walk on four legs.

Some farmers have narrowed their souls to broaden their acres.

We will doubtless have big crops this year, but have we made any preparation to market them right? Or are we going to send them to the buyer in the same old way and then let him put his own price on them?

Where its "every follow for himself" the devil generally gets the foremost.

Too many of us are so busy keeping down the weeds in our fields that we neglect to cultivate the flowers in the hearts of our wives and children.

The man who is forever jumping in and out of certain lines of farming according to the rise and fall of the markets always comes out at the little end of the horn. The stickers are the winners.

TO MAKE DAIRY PROFITS

In growing and selecting food for our cows we should have two objects in view. First, select the food that we wish to grow on our own farm. Second, the food that has the most fertilizing value. The home-grown feeds should constitute the chief ration, and this should be balanced by the use of mill feeds, oil meal gluten feeds, cotton seed meal and other commercial feed stuffs.

In all of the dairy sections where corn can be grown with success corn ensilage is the most economical food that can be grown on the farm. Very few farmers realize the value of ensilage when it is properly cared for. The most sucessful dairymen have some cash or market crop that is grown in their regular rotations besides the food for the cows.

If the dairyman has a silo a rotation of corn followed by wheat and seeded with clover makes a very satisfactory rotation. The clover is cut one season, the manure hauled and spread on the clover sod and plowed under for ensilage corn. This rotation insures large crops of corn for the silo, followed by large crops of wheat and clover, until the land is in condition to produce good profitable crops every year regardless of dry weather or heavy rains.

The selection of the individual cows for the dairy is one of the important phases of the business. Instead of keeping cows that are not paying profits on the amount of feed consumed and labor in caring for them the dairyman must be constantly testing them by using the scales and Babcock test and keeping account of the feed that they consume. There has been no time during the past twenty years but what a dairyman with a selected dairy of good cows could not make a profit on his investment.

OF INTEREST TO FRUIT GROWERS

This fruit was wrapped and packed by the Idaho Experiment Station as an object lesson to the fruit growers of that territory. The cost of wrapping fruit is so very small that it cuts little figure when the additional price obtained is considered.

NEW POINTS ON ALFALFA

Alfalfa will grow best in a rich clay loam over a gravelly subsoil is the conclusion of the Wisconsin station. It will do best on well-cultivated soils. Soil should be inoculated where the nitrogen forming bacteria are not present.

Spring sowing is best.

Where ground is inclined to be weedy use a nurse crop; barley sown at the rate of three pecks per acre being the best.

Thin seeding of the nurse crop is preferable. Twenty pounds of alfalfa seed per acre is recommended. The year following the seeding three crops of hay can be expected.

Cut when about one-tenth of plants are in bloom and on a morning after the dew has disappeared on a day that promises fair weather.

Cut stubble at least an inch high. In the afternoon of the day cut, rake and put into small cocks. These cocks can be covered with light cotton duck caps and left until the hay is thoroughly cured.

KAFFIR CORN IN THE SOUTH

That Kaffir corn and milo maize are not properly appreciated in the feed trade is the conclusion of the Texas station in a feeding test. These grains contain considerably less fat or oil than Indian corn and in other constituents the differences are not important. The protein and fat of Kaffir corn are much less easily digested than the same constituents in Indian corn. In a feeding test the Kaffir corn produced greater gains than milo maize with Indian corn in third place.

SUGAR IN PLACE OF ALCOHOL

One of the recent claims of scientists is that if sugar is supplied plentifully an appetite for alcohol will not be created. Farm life affords many luxuries improved by the liberal use of sugar, and if this use will curb the craving for liquor this fact should be kept to the front. Anyway, sugar is cheaper and more wholesome than meat, and if, as is claimed, the taste depraved by alcohol spurns it the chance of preventing other tastes from becoming so perverted is worth the trial.

METHOD IN MODEL DAIRY

New York Man Makes Small Farm Produce Big Yield by Liberal Use of Brains.

BY J. M. KELLY.

As an example of what constitutes a well managed dairy farm and its equipment I have selected a typical, well-managed New York state farm, that of Albert H. Ball located near Eas Aurora, Erie county, N. Y.

The set of comfortable and practical farm buildings on this farm have been erected from the proceeds of the dairy, while the production of milk for the city trade has been the leading feature of the farm management.

This farm consists of about 120 acres of land, of which only a few acres are utilized for permanent pasture, the balance being under an intense system of cultivation. Mr. Ball's system of cropping consists of a four-year rotation.

The clover sod is manured by hauling the manure direct from the stable as fast as it is made and spreading it on the clover sod. This clover sod is plowed under and the field planted to potatoes.

The next year the field is plowed and planted to ensilage corn, and when it is possible to get the corn off the land and into the siloes it is plowed the same fall and sowed to wheat and seeded with clover, thus the owner grows two cash or money crops and grows the ensilage and clover necessary to support the dairy.

The number of cows kept varies more or less, but at all times enough are kept to produce 120 gallons of milk every day in the year. The milk sells for 12 cents per gallon on board cars ready for shipment to the city dealers.

Outside of the dairy products there have been sold from this farm during the past ten years an average crop of from three to four thousand bushels of potatoes and from 300 to 500 bushels of rye and wheat.

Mr. Ball claims that if a dairyman makes a pracice of buying large amounts of grain and commercial feed stuffs he should make it a point to grow enough market or cash crops to pay for his grain, thus leaving his milk checks as his income out of which to keep up the buildings, equipment and pay the necesary expenses of the farm.

The saving of all the manure on the farm, the growing of clover and legumes and the selecting of a rational rotation of crops adapted to the farm and the liberal feeding of his herd of dairy cows is what Mr. Ball claims constitute success in the management of a dairy farm.

Grade Holstein cows are considered the most economical producers of milk for the city trade and are used almost exclusively on this farm, although Ayrshires and high grade Ayrshire cows are well liked by the owner.

There are many other farms in this section of New York that compare favorably with this farm, but I selected one that I thought was a typical example of what a man with brains, energy and skill in dairying might accomplish in the dairy business.

One of the illustrations is that of a high producing grade Holstein cow from Mr. Ball's herd that produces 1,800 pounds of milk a month, and the other a high-grade Jersey cow that has a record of 19 pounds of butter a week. The Jerseys are kept to maintain the quality of the milk and many of them are very profitable producers of milk.

All of the work on this farm is done with regularity. One man has sole charge of the cows and does all the feeding, cleaning and hauling out of the manure and at milking time is assisted by two farm hands.

Automatic water basins are by the side of each cow, and during the coldest weather they are not turned out of the stable at any time except when the stables are cleaned and then for only a short time.

I have only covered the ground of describing the dairy that is producing city milk, but the same general principles underlie all branches of dairying and will be found the same in all sections of the country where dairying is carried on.

OKLAHOMA FARMERS UP TO DATE

Although Oklahoma is the newest state in the union it has some of the best farmers in the country. The enterprising spirits generally go west and it is a fact that some of the best methods of farming are put into practice by these bold and vigorous men. The Oklahoma farmers believe in organization and they already have a union, which comprises nearly 50,000 members. Their cotton and most of their other crops are handled by their own agents, and the practical results, so far, have been very satisfactory. I am told that the farmers of Oklahoma and Kansas, who are also pretty well organized, get better prices for their crops than those farmers in the older states, taking into consideration their methods of marketing.

HENS IN CHERRY TREES

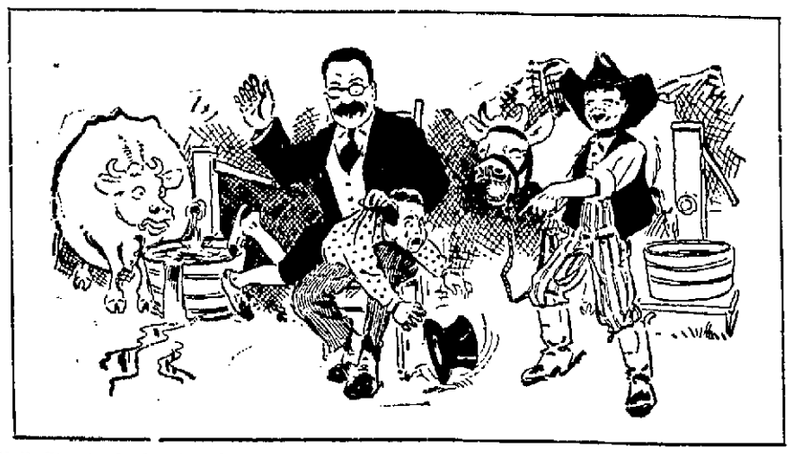
Following the advice of better orchardists than I am I have for several years pruned my trees for low heads. I can pick 90 per cent of my peaches standing on the ground, and a step ladder is all that is needed for the apples.

My cherry rees are low and spread out over a good bit of ground all around. Last spring I fenced in the cherry orchard and a dozen pear and plum trees and turned a flock of sixty white Plymouth Rock hens into they place. They enjoyed it much and grew fat on the bugs and worms which they were encouraged to scratch for by grain scattered in the grass.

When cherry time came I was surprised one morning to see one of the hens perched on a low limb of a cherry tree, but did not suspect she was after cherries. She was invited to climb down and go about her business. Next morning I went out to see the cherries and I nearly fell over when I discovered about half the flock in the trees helping themselves to the fruit.

Some of them had actually climbed to the topmost limbs and were gobbling cherries at a great rate. I was obliged to lock up the entire flock till the cherries were picked to save the crop. And, do you know, the birds were afraid to venture near the trees.—C. T. Miller.

A DIFFERENCE



Willie Wall Street—Ouch, that hurts awful. I only watered my stock because Johnny Farmer waters his. You said he was a good boy, didn't you?

Father Theodore—Oh, yes, my son, but Johnny Farmer always feeds his stock well and you give yours nothing but water. See?—America Farm World.

A PLAIN CASE OF GARGET

To the Editor: I have a cow that gives lumpy milk out of one of her front teats. She is a fresh cow. Her calf is 8 weeks old and as I brought her about two weeks ago I don't know what is the cause. Please tell me what to do to core her. She is 6 years old and half Jersey.—J. S. Sadler, West Virginia.

From the description you give of your cow's diefficulty we would say she has garget, which may have been caused by some external violence, overdriving, an overdistended udder or from exposure or sudden changes in temperature.

The milder form of this disease is rather easy to cure and we have successfully handled cows that have had garget by giving them a mild cathartic, such as a half pound of Epsom salts and followed with a tablespoonful of nitrate of potash (common saltpeter) given in water or a bran mash night and morning.

Keep the cow milked clean and do everything possible to keep the milk out of the affected quarter.

Rub the udder gently with the following ointment:

Camphor, powdered.....½ ounce
Extract of belladonna..... 2 ounces
Lard ..... 2 ounces

If abscesses form open them and allow the pus to escape and then syringe the cavity out with peroxide of hydrogen and dress with the following ointment:

Sulphate of copper (blue vitriol) powdered.....1 dram
Lard .....1 ounce

HELPS IN WOMAN'S WORK

BY MRS. T. L. ANDREWS.

A homey home carries the personality of the presiding genius into every nook and corner, into the arrangement of all the furnishings, whether they are rich and rare materials or of the commoner substances, and no matter if very valuable or less expensive things are used harmony in tones and and colorings must be the first requisite, for unless the eye is rested the whole body is set on edge, though we may scarcely realize perhaps the cause.

Distribute pictures as to light and best effect.

Choose pleasant subjects suggestive of uplifting thoughts for pictures and never depressing views.

Make easy access to good books, papers and magazines—the crowning glory of a room.

Adjust draperies—in short, make everything restful and comfortable in the surroundings, for every inmate of the dwelling must be in the mind of the successful homemaker.

The keynote should be the uplifting and broadening of the soul and the comfort and well-being of the body.

There is greater art in saving work to the housekeeper than in doing work.

A homely old adage reads, "To fetch and to carry is the great secret of domestic success."

BUY SEED CORN NEAR HOME

Tests Show Foreign Grain Must Have Time to Find Proper Place in Soil.

BY T. L. LYON, NEBRASKA.

When corn grown in one section of the country for a number of years is moved to another section where soil and climate are different the plant always undergoes more or less of a change during the first two or three years before it becomes "adapted" to its new conditions.

The definite effect of climate in modifying the corn plant is shown in the following experiment: Seed of two varieties of corn, Snowflake White and Iowa Gold Mine, was obtained from Iowa and grown in Nebraska for two years. In the third year seed was taken from this and seed was also obtained from the original source in Iowa.

These were all planted in adjacent plats at the experiment station. A marked difference was shown throughout the experiment between the different plats. In the Snowflake White variety the stalk from the seed that had grown in central Nebraska for two years had decreased almost a foot in height. The ear was 8.8 inches lower down and the ear shank almost 2 inches shorter, while the plants from Nebraska seed had an average of 1.2 fewer leaves.

The weight of both stalk and ear was found to be heavier in the corn grown from the seed just from Iowa, but the proportion of ear to stalk was higher in the acclimated corn.

The Nebraska corn averaged about 200 square inches less leaf area, which was to be expected of plants grown in a drier climate. The yield of grain was in favor of the home-grown seed.

Similar conclusions were indicated from the variety tests of the twenty-two varieties that were tested by the co-operating farmers in various parts of the state. Thirteen were Nebraska grown, four were from Illinois, two from Iowa, one from Indiana and two from Minnesota.

In these experiments the significant fact was revealed that not one of the nine varieties, the seed of which was grown outside the state, ever took first or even second place in the average results of the state.

These results do not indicate that the varieties from the other states are poorer seed than our own. Their low yield is due to the fact that they are not at first adapted or acclimated to Nebraska conditions.

The lesson to be learned from this is that to get the best results in corn growing the seed must be home grown and grown not only in the same state but in the same locality.

CANNOT MAKE GOOD BUTTER

To the Editor: For three weeks in February I was unable to get any butter from the milk churned and in my experience of fifteen years with milk and butter I have never had the like and have tried everything I know to do.

The milk seems to have a nice cream on it before it is turned ready to churn and then it seems like the cream will turn before the other and cook in lumps and has a bad smell. One cow has been giving milk about three months and the other about eleven months. I scald and rinse the churn well and air it, also try to let the cows have plenty of salt, still I cannot get a bit of butter to come.

At first just a soft skim of butter would form on the milk when it was poured out and let stand over night and now none comes at all, and it will foam until it gets most hot enough to boil.

I would be glad of any information as I have never had such experience before.—Mrs. J. A. Smith, Opie, Va.

Your trouble is something unusual and from the meager information I have at hand it will be very difficult for me to give you an accurate remedy.

From what you write I would say that the difficulty seems to be in handling and storing the cream. There are three reasons for having difficulty in churning: First, uncleanliness in handling the cream or churn; second, a prolonged rest of the milk or cream before churning; third, sickly properties of the milk and in some cases a partial decomposition of the caseine or other component parts of the milk.

From what you write I would think that the latter hits your case. Keep your cream in a different place and churn oftener and report result and I will try to get you on the right track.—W. M. Kelly.

Frank E. Crane five years ago bought 400 acres of land near Ottawa, Kan., for $30 per acre—$12,000. He spent $6,000 in building a modern house, with gas, bath, and in other improvements on the place, and was recently offered $40,000 for his farm. The offer was promptly refused. There is a great sermon in this little paragraph, which should interest farmers everywhere.

IS DRY FEEDING BEST?

Some very successful poultry men are replacing mash for fowls by dry feed and say they find it to be of greater value as food and find their hens are less subject to disease.

In one of Professor Gowell's experiments the effects of replacing mash with dry feed was also studied with 1,400 chickens fed cracked corn (or this grain and wheat) and beef scrap kept in separate slatted troughs so that they could help themselves at will to which ever feed they desired. The grain ration for pullets was about three-fourths corn and one-fourth wheat and for cockerels cracked corn only. There were no regular hours for feeding, but care was taken that the troughs were never empty. Grit, bones and oyster shells were also supplied as usual.

The results were satisfactory. The labor of feeding was far less than that required by any other method followed. The birds did not hang around the troughs and over eat, but helped themselves a little at a time and ranged off, hunting or playing and coming back again when so inclined to the food supply at the troughs.

There was no rushing or crowding about the attendant, as is usual at feeding time when large numbers are kept together. While the birds liked the beef scrap, they did not overeat at it.

During the range season—from June to the close of October—the birds ate just about one pound of the scrap to ten pounds of the cracked corn and wheat. They had opportunity to balance their rations to suit themselves by having the two classes of food to select from always at hand.

The birds did well under this treatment. The cockerels were well developed and we never raised a better lot of pullets. The first egg was laid when the oldest pullets were four months and ten days old.

WORK IN THE CHICKEN YARD

If a Barred Rock chick is very light—running to gray on the back—it will develop into a wide-barred and very ordinary bird at maturity.

If they are a soft, velvety black with salmon points, you have superior bred birds.

Breed from vigorous, well-developed stock and the mortality will be light.

An individual feed coop for each brood, whether with hens or brooder is not merely a convenience, but a necessity.

Keep air-slaked lime in the coops as a preventive of gapes.

Neglecting to do this, put a couple of inches of lime in the bottom of a box, drop the chicks in and cover them. They will stir up an awful dust, inhale it, cough and sneeze and expel the worm. Don't go visiting during the process.

If your chicks are moping for no apparent cause, look for insects. Failing to find them, look again. Failing again, treat them for lice any way, and you will probably come out all right.

The best farm ration we have ever found, after they outgrow chick feed, is equal parts cracked corn and oats supplemented by sweet skim milk and pure water, with some rusty iron placed in the drinking vessel always before them.

BLEACHING CELERY IN STOREHOUSE

Celery may be kept in good condition and well bleached by placing it on the floor of the vegetable house. The floor should be first covered with about six inches of dry sand and the celery should then be stood up, roots down, close together and filled in with earth. The floor should be inclosed by 12-inch boards and the vegetable house should be well ventilated. Bins for other vegetables can be provided above the celery plats.

HELP OUT THE BOY

Two of my boys have decided to follow farming, the other is going to the city to study mechanical engineering. I am pretty well satisfied to get two farmers out of the three and they are going to be better farmers than I am if the agricultural college can do the trick. When I was a boy my education was confined to three months at the little old red schoolhouse where a new teacher—usually some raw-boned, laddie-buck who ought to have been in school himself—tried to teach us "readin', writin' and 'rithmetic." My education on the farm was dull, hard work, doing things just as my grandfather had done them. My pleasure was trapping rabbits and mink in winter and fishing about twice in summer, when I could steal away. On Sundays I sat on the doorstep or the horseblock wearing a pair of cowhide shoes, a stiff shirt, longing for the woods and the creek and grumbling and growling to myself when I was not reading the Bible or studying the catechism. Tough times for boys then, but I learned a lesson which may help my own boys. They shall have an education, some healthful pleasure always and freedom.—John T. Miller, Iowa.

MILK FROM BOTH SIDES

Why are cows always milked from the "off," or right side? Just because they have been taught that way. A cow can be milked from either side if she is brought up right. But the lessons must commence at the start. Milk first from one side and then the other and in a short time the heifer will not mind. It often comes handy to milk from the left side and cows should be trained to stand for it. The man who will make a pet of his cow will have no trouble and will get a bigger benefit at milking time than the one who treats her as a stranger, if not an enemy.

TURN ALFALFA INTO EGGS

Farmer's Wife Says It Makes Fine Ration for Winter as Well as Summer.

BY MRS. E. ROBERTSON.

I do not find much written about alfalfa in any of the poultry journals, and yet I have demonstrated to my satisfaction during the past year that it excels clover both as a green food for growing chicks and a winter relish for adult fowls.

We have a field of ten acres sown to alfalfa stretching just below the colony coops and pens where I raise my chicks.

Last summer I noticed that as soon as I gave the chicks free range they would seek this field and spend hours in the growing alfalfa, particularly when it blossomed ready for cutting.

By close observation I found that they ate the tender tops and purple buds ravenously and certainly seemed to thrive on the food.

I tried sowing some seed in my nursery pen and it was wonderful to see how the chicks enjoyed it—wee, fluffy fellows just from the incubator. This set me to thinking.

When winter came on I housed 100 pure Buff Cochin pullets in a fairly roomy and comfortable house.

The large hay barn was stored to the roof with alfalfa and millet hay. From the former the leaves and dried blossoms, still green in hue, fell in masses of fine fragrant litter, useless to the cattle and horses, which only ate the bulkier stems.

All winter long I used this alfalfa chaff for litter in my houses, bedding the floor deep every day.

The hens scratched in it for their grain and ate every available bit they could pick up. By night the floor would be bare and a fresh supply was thrown in ready for the morning meal.

My hens have always done well as winter layers, but this season they have outdone themselves and made a record which is the wonder and envy of all my neighbors.

I give the credit to alfalfa, especially as some close neighbors with warmer houses—one of them heated—who bought patent eggmaking foods, protein and blood meal in large quantities and who have bone mills and feed green bone all winter, with oyster shells, mica grit and cut clover, got next to no eggs at all.

In fact, the one who has the heated chicken house did not average three eggs a week and the other barely got enough for family use.

In past winters eggs from my old hens have been few and far between. It was the pullets that laid the eggs, but not only did the hens lay but they want to set just as if it was summer weather.

I broke as many as a dozen at a time last January. In the face of facts like these I naturally give the credit to alfalfa. This was the sole addition to their feed, and the only grain they had was corn and an occasional feed of boiled oats, for we did not sow wheat last year.

At the present writing I have over six hundred, thrifty, growing chicks scratching in alfalfa litter for their grain, whereas in the neighborhood the hens are only just beginning to set and nobody has any chicks as yet.

I have become an enthusiast on the subject of alfalfa and I say to all breeders of chickens, sow it in the pens and also store it as a winter egg producer.

SOME RANDOM REFLECTIONS

A man without wrinkles on his brow seldom knows much of the joys or sorrows of life.

In serving others we often serve ourselves without knowing it.

The man who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before is a public benefactor, but he who puts a homeless, helpless child on its feet and gives it a fair start in life is more.

The peony is a bragger of beauty and flaunts its gorgeous colors, but lacks the fragrance of the modest violet.

The boy who does not realize what it means to be punctual and reliable starts on his life race with a heavy handicap.

BORDER OF BEAUTIFUL COLORS

If you want a border of beautiful colors select such bulbs as the Empress, Emperor, large trumpet narcissi, the single Van Sion, the chalice cup or star narcissi, the poet's narcissi, the double daffodils or gardenia and the paper white narcissi. The large trumpet narcissi in the picture is one of the most beautiful of this species and it is hardy, rich and very satisfactory in every way.

WE SHOULD KNOW THE TREES

What is the use of us spending our whole lives among the trees without becoming acquainted with them? Write in a little book kept for the purpose the names and descriptions of all of the trees that grow in your vicinity. Make a collection of the wood and bark of each—also of the fruit if it be preservable, as in the case of the nut. Try to tell what kind of a tree you are passing by feeling of its bark wih your eyes closed. Send a postal to Department of Forestry, Washington, D. C., asking for literature which will enable you to carry on this interesting study. It will be provided free. Find out just how to take care of your lumber so that it will bring you in the best returns.

RAILROADS PLACE ORDERS WITH CAR SHOPS FOR EQUIPMENT

Contracts Involving Millions are Let—Shop and Rail News.

Yesterday the management of the Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, distributed orders for seventy-seven all steel passenger cars, involving an outlay of $1,250,000. Thirty-one of these cars will be built by the Pressed Steel Car company, twenty-nine by the American Car and Foundry company, and seventeen by the Standard Steel Car company. This order is in addition to one issued Monday, when contracts for $5,000,000 worth of electrical equipment for the Hudson river tunnels were made. All of the steel passenger cars are to contain the latest improvements. Aside from the mahogany window sash and seat frames, there is to be no wood whatever in the cars. A feature of construction, to lessen the danger of collisions, will be the central box girders, extending throughout the length of each car, and to further insure them against collapsing, their frames will be designed upon the principle of the cantilever bridge, with the trucks as piers. The order for these seventy-seven cars is in addition to orders for 200 previously placed, and is in line with the policy of the company to eliminate the wooden passenger car from its service.

According to reports from the car builders, other roads are also placing orders for equipment. Yesterday the Pressed Steel Car company, of Pittsburg, was awarded the contract for 2,200 steel cars by the South and Western. The Carnegie Steel company has been asked to bid at once on the steel to be used in their construction. It is reported that many hundreds of men will be placed at work next week at the car-making plants. In addition to this order, there was inquiry in the Pittsburg district for 500 cars from an eastern road and 1,500 cars from a road in Virginia. It is believed now that work to keep the car plants going for one year will be closed within the next ten days.

FOOT BADLY BRUISED.

Pile of Iron Falls on H. A. Lammatzsch.

H. A. Lammatzsch, who is employed as a blacksmith's helper at the Pennsylvania shops, sustained painful injuries this morning, when a half-ton or more of iron toppled over on him. He was assisting in handling on a wagon a number of drawbar yokes, when the wheel of the vehicle struck something, the load tilted and some of it fell, catching Mr. Lammatzsch's left foot under it. Luckily no bones were broken, but the member was severely bruised and sprained. A cab was called and the injured man was sent to his home.

MUST HAVE CARPENTERS.

Pennsylvania Shop Management Seeking Employes.

The Pennsylvania car shops are short on carpenters and car repairmen and one of the officials said this morning that if the necessary help could not be gotten here, an effort would be made to find it in other places. The company has put a lot of new men at work within the past two weeks, but they were chiefly laborers, and carpenters and car repairmen are most needed at present. One hundred men equipped for car repair work can find steady employment during the winter at the shops.

GOING AFTER BIG GAME.

Car Load of Hunters Leaves City for Witbeck.

A party of twenty-three men occupied a special car in Pennsylvania train No. 23 out of this city at noon today, bound for Witbeck, Mich., a small station in the forests of Northern Michigan, on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road. They expect to spend two weeks or more in hunting deer and bear in that country. In the party were well known hunters from Fort Wayne, Convoy, Decatur and Portland.

A BUSY LITTLE SHOP.

The F. G. Gauntt Manufacturing company's plant, on Pearl street, is a busy little place at present, because of the demand for automatic mill feeders which followed the introduction of Mr. Gauntt's patent in this line. The patent covers a feeder that is applicable to all kinds of work of that character, from a spice mixer to a concrete machine employed in street paving work. Its chief feature, and one which is appreciated by mill men and others using machines of this kind, is a device which admits of a change from a continuous to a batch mixer and vice versa instantaneously, and a graduating attachment which enables the operator to feed the mill any desired amount, from a mere trifle to its full capacity. There are a number of other features which commend this automatic feeder to all who examine it. Just at present the little factory is busy supplying feeders for flouring and spice mills, the season for street paving machinery having passed. The company has had one of its concrete mixers in use on the streets for several months and many people interested in that kind of work have examined it and expressed surprise and admiration of the excellence of its mixing qualities.

HOW I MADE MY HAIR GROW

Woman With Marvelously Beautiful Hair Gives Simple Home Prescription Which She Used With Most Remarkable Results.

I was greatly troubled with dandruff and falling hair. I tried many advertised hair preparations and various prescriptions, but they all signally failed; many of them made my hair greasy so it was impossible to comb it or to do it up properly. I think that many of the things I tried were positively injurious and from my own experience I cannot too strongly caution you against using preparations containing wood alcohol and other poisonous substances. I believe they injure the roots of the hair. After my long list of failures I finally found a simple prescription which I used with most remarkable results and I can unhesitatingly state it is beyond doubt the most wonderful thing for the hair I have ever seen. Many of my friends have also used it and obtained wonderful effects therefrom. It is not only a powerful stimulant to the growth of the hair and for restoring gray hair to its natural color, but it is equally good for removing dandruff, giving the hair life and brilliancy, etc., and for the purpose of keeping the scalp in first-class condition. It also makes the hair much easier to comb and arrange in nice form. I have a friend who used it two months and during that time it not only stopped the falling of his hair and wonderfully increased its growth, but it practically restored all of his gray hair to its natural color. You can obtain the ingredients for making this wonderful preparation from almost any druggist. The prescription is as follows:

Bay rum, 6 oz.; Menthol crystals, one-half drachm; Lavona de Composee, 2 oz.; To-Kalon perfume, 1 to 2 teaspoonfuls.

Apply night and morning; rub thoroughly into the scalp.

Go to your druggist and ask for an eight-ounce bottle containing six ounces of Bay Rum, also one-half drachm of Menthol crystals, and for a two-ounce bottle of Lavona de Composee. Mix the ingredients yourself at your own home. Add the Menthol crystals to the Bay Rum and then pour in the Lavona de Composee and add the To-Kalon perfume. Let it stand for one-half hour and it is ready for use.

REDUCED CHICAGO RATE.

On account of the Chicago fat stock show and the automobile show in that city during the week beginning November 29, the Pennsylvania and the Nickel Plate will make a rate of $5.05 for the round trip from this city. This is a reduction of one-quarter of the regular price. Tickets will be good returning until and including December 12. This arrangement probably means that there will be no week end excursions to Chicago this season.

MOVING TO CALIFORNIA.

Fireman W. S. Spicer, of the Pennsylvania, has returned to the city and reported for work, after accompanying his parents a part of the way to California, where they will reside in the future. Both of the old people are in bad health and the move to California is on that account. They were residents of Van Wert county, just east of Monroeville, many years, and have many friends in Fort Wayne.

HAND BURNED BY OIL.

While carrying a bucket in which were a number of oil soaked shavings to be used in starting a fire in the firebox of a locomotive at the Pennsylvania round house last night, the oil caught fire in some manner and the flames enveloped A. Sarver's left arm, burning the hand painfully. He is an engine preparer at the round house.

ENTERTAINING BROTHER FROM ABROAD.

L. Pytel, of the boiler department of the Pennsylvania round house, is entertaining his brother, a resident of Yawaszno, Poland, who arrived in the city yesterday for a three weeks' visit. The visitor is an employe of the secret service department of his native country and will return there soon to take up his duties.

DRIVEN OUT BY COLD.

Because of failure of the heating plant to do its work properly and the consequent low temperature in the room, twenty-five of the girls employed in the lamp factory on Holman street, quit work and went home. Repairs were made and everything is all right at those works again. The incident gave rise to the rumor that there was a strike at the factory.

SICK IN FIREBOX.

While at work in a firebox of a locomotive at the Pennsylvania round house this morning, Boilermaker John Waldman was taken with hemorrhage of the stomach and was quite sick. He was compelled to quit work and return to his home. He has been in poor health for two or three weeks.

MACHINIST INJURED.

A pedestal cap, a heavy piece of metal, fell on E. W. Seibert, a machinist in the Pennsylvania shops, yesterday. One of his legs was bruised and sprained, but the bones escaped fracture. The injury will disable him for a while.

Freight engine 2057 was turned out of the Wabash shops today, thoroughly repaired, and will be sent to the Detroit division.

Mrs. Toomey returned to Bourbon this morning, after a week's visit with her son, Earl Toomey, night ticket agent of the Pennsylvania.

William Martin, the retired house mover, residing on Broadway, is out on the streets, after a serious attack of sickness. Mr. Martin is seventy-six years old.

Supt. M. L. Reynolds and Roadmaster H. W. Lomas, of the Lake Shore, with headquarters in Hillsdale, were in the city yesterday on business for the company.

Freight business on the G. R. & I. is showing a gratifying increase, which promises to continue. The company's motive power is nearly all in service at present.

Frank Parain has returned from his maiden trip over the line as traveling passenger agent of the Nickel Plate. He says business was heavy this week, due in part to the election.

William W. Moring, who resigned as conductor on one of the city street car lines, has taken employment at the east car shops. Mr. Moring was employed on the street car line several years.

Master Mechanic O. P. Reese, of the Mahoningtown shops of the Pennsylvania, is in the city on business for the company. He will return home tonight. Mrs. Reese is with her husband.

P. F. Smith, Jr., master mechanic of the Panhandle shops at Columbus, is combining business for the railway company and a visit with old friends in the city. Mr. Smith resided here eight or ten years ago.

Machinist John Raidy, of the Pennsylvania shops, who has been suffering for some time, was taken to St. Joseph hospital this morning for a surgical operation. It will not be serious and Mr. Raidy will probably be at work again in a week or two.

The Lake Shore and the L. E. & W. will handle two theatrical companies in and out of Fort Wayne next week, each having twenty-five people and extra baggage car. The "Way Down East" company will go to Jackson, Mich., and the "Man of the Hour" company to Detroit.

The Stein Carnival company, which has been in camp near the city for some time, left yesterday for Memphis, Tenn., via the Lake Erie and Western and the Louisville and Nashville roads. A car load of horses belonging to the company left the city several days ago. There are twenty-eight people in the company.

The open hunting season commences next Tuesday and many of the Nimrods at the shops are making arrangements to be early in the field. Among them will be Herman Krohne, assistant storekeeper at the round house, who will go to Pierceton Monday to remain all week, hunting in the country thereabouts.

The shortage of box cars on the Hocking Valley has reached such proportions that the company is resorting to the use of beer cars for transporting glass sand from the quarry at Silica to consumers on the lines of the Baltimore and Ohio, Hocking Valley and other roads. The best cars are lined with paper, so that they may not be made unfit for the uses for which they were designed.

The Peerless-Colonial dancing club will meet tomorrow evening in Hanker's hall.

You! Dyspeptics Read

What An Eminent Medical Man Says Dyspepsia Really Is.—Then Gain Hope.

"This affection called Dyspepsia is the greatest torment of civilized life, and is to be considered rather as an unnatural functional difficulty than as a structural disease."

The same authority has classified dyspepsia thus: The first form due to relations with other organs which are in a morbid and unhealthy state, which is characterized as a reflex action. Of such a type is the nausea and vomiting caused by irritation of brain, lungs, liver or uterus.

The second form is caused by scanty supply of gastric juice, made evident by slowness of digestion, long retention of food in the stomach, distress for a long time after meals, accompanied by weighty and uneasy feelings at pit of stomach, decomposition of food in alimentary canal, causing fetid and foul gases and the appearance of undigested food in the evactuations from bowels.

The third and last form of dyspepsia, according to this renowned medical light, is that which accompanies some abnormal quality of the gastric juice, combined with a partial paralysis of the stomach's muscles so that this organ cannot sufficiently mix the food with the digestive fluids.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will remedy each condition of a stomach afflicted with dyspepsia as above described.

These tablets contain digestive agents which act with or without the aid of the stomach. One grain of an ingredient used in these tablets will digest 3,000 grains of food, and if necessary will do it in a glass vial so that the digestion can be seen by the human eye.

They help the stomach enrich the blood, revitalize the gastric juices, give strength to the alimentary nerves and glands. They are recommended by every druggist and 40,000 physicians who use and prescribe them. A BALD-HEADED WOMAN

Shorn of Her Crown of Beauty Loses in Love and Marriage.

Hair is certainly most necessary to woman. Who could love and marry a bald-headed woman? What charms could one array to offset such a disfigurement?

A woman's goal is usually love and marriage. Her crowning glory is her hair. The loss of her hair mars her beauty, happiness and success. Yet, right here in Fort Wayne, there are thousands of women who are neglecting or injuring their hair to such an extent that it is only a matter of time when it will be utterly ruined.

Many women destroy the beauty of their hair through thoughtlessness or ignorance of certain facts. They use curling irons over-heated, or to excess, which destroys the natural oil of the hair, causing it to split, break and come out. They do not shampoo their hair often enough, or too often. They use soaps or preparations which contain ingredients positively harmful to the scalp and hair.

As a result of such treatment, dandruff is created, the hair loosens, loses color, falls out, and baldness commences, unless proper and prompt precautions are taken in time. Then again, microbes and certain diseases bring about unhealthy scalp and hair conditions.

Almost anyone may rid themselves of dandruff and diseased scalp and hair if they will but use the right remedy. We have that remedy, and we will positively guarantee that it will either cure dandruff and baldness or it will not cost the user anything.

That's a pretty broad statement, but we will back it and prove it with our own money. Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is the remedy that will grow hair and overcome all scalp and hair troubles. It will grow hair even on bald heads, unless all life in the hair roots has been extinguished, the follicles closed, and the scalp is glazed and shiny. It gets its name from the fact that it grew hair in 93 out of 100 cases, where it received a thoroughly hard, impartial and practical test.

We want you to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic at our risk. You surely cannot lose anything by doing so, while you have everything to gain. You had better think this over, and then come in and see us about this offer. You will be well repaid for your visit to our store. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Meyer Bros. Co., Three Drug Stores, Fort Wayne, Ind.

The number of physicians practicing in Paris is placed at 2,500, but only about one-half of these make more than $1,000 a year. Dentists do somewhat better; a fashionable one can easily earn $6,000, while in some cases this figure is greatly exceeded.

In 1907 the amount of gold mined in the Philippines was 4,540 ounces, and up to June of that year 1,601 lode claims and 533 placer claims had been filed. Silver is as yet practically a negligible quantity (83 ounces mined in 1907.) All the iron yet produced comes from one furnace (436 short tons last year,) and the methods are very crude.

THE MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 6.—Liberal receipts in the northwest had a depressing effect today on the local wheat market, but prices held fairly steady, owing to a good demand by commission houses. The Ohio state report which estimated the condition of the fall sown crop in that state to be 56 compared with 82 a year ago, offset the effect of the free movement in the northwest. December opened ¼c to ⅜c higher at $1.00 to $1.00⅛, sold off to 99⅝c and then rallied again to the opening figures. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 589 cars.

The wheat market displayed more strength during the last half of the day and December advanced to $1.00½@1.00⅝. The close was firm with December up ⅜c at $1.00¼.

Additional declines occurred in corn, prices following yesterday's slump of nearly 1c per bu. The weakness today was due chiefly to the Ohio state report, which showed that the condition of the new crop to be 88 against 80 a month ago. Excellent weather for the movement also depressed prices. December opened a shade to ¼@⅜c lower at 61⅛c to 61¾c and sold off to 61¼c. Receipts were 73 cars.

The low point for December corn was reached at 61@61¼c. The market closed weak with December down ⅛c at 61¼@61⅜c.

Trade in oats was quiet and the market was steady. December opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 47⅛@47⅜c and for a time held within that range.

Provisions were weak, owing to selling based on a 5c to 10c decline in live hogs. Prices at the start were 2½@5c to 12½c lower.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, Nov. 6.—The stock market had a strong opening today with large buying orders in evidence for many of the most prominent stocks. Running sales of Northern Pacific were at an extreme advance of 1¾. The gain in Amalgamated Copper was 1½, American Smelting 1¼, Southern Pacific, St. Paul, Canadian Pacific and Consolidated Gas 1, and Union Pacific, Reading, United States Steel, Anaconda and Colorado Fuel large fractions.

Speculation was broad and animated and all classes of stocks advanced beyond their opening prices. The copper stocks and industrial group generally were notably strong, as were also the recognized leaders in the railroad list. Profit taking sales were abundant in Northern Pacific and it eventually reacted a point. Its decline had some effect in checking the general advance and quieting the market. Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis gained 2½, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting and Pullman 2, and Union Pacific, New York Central, Canadian Pacific, Consolidated Gas, National Lead, United States Rubber, Westinghouse Electric, American Locomotive and Great Northern Ore Certificates 1½ to 1¾.

Stocks continued to be absorbed at rising prices and with great animation and breadth in the dealings. Issues which have not been so promient hitherto outran the more favorite speculative mediums in which profit taking sales were in evidence at all stages. Industrials continued the most conspicuous. Union Pacific and United States Steel was absorbed on an enormous scale at an advance of 1⅝. Lackawanna rose 7½, Virginia Carolina Chemical 4⅛, New York Central 3½, United States Rubber second preferred 4, Norfolk & Western preferred 3¼ and Great Northern Ore Certificates 2¾. The gains of 1 to 2 points were common to the whole list. Bonds were strong.

The bull movementin stocks continued in full swing, but the sensational fluctuations were restricted to a few stocks. The great bulk of the list moved up in a steady orderly fashion on the tremendous buying that went on at all points. Great Northern Ore Certificates jumped 5½. Louisville & Nashville 3¼, Atlantic Coast Line 2¾ and Union Pacific 2½.

The demand was revived for the standard railroad stocks, especially St. Paul and the Harrimans. The rest of the list paused, but there were no signs of weakness and profit taking sales were well absirbed. United States Steel was conspicuous by crossing 53 and a number of other low-priced stocks also made striking gains. Atlantic Coast Line got up 4¾. Union Pacific and Western Union 3. St. Paul and Rock Island preferred 2 and Southern Pacific 1¾.

The market closed strong and furiously active. The market continued exceedingly active and varied, with some stocks showing the effects of profit taking while others forged upwards to new high levels.

United States Steel moved up an extreme 3¼ to 54 and Amalgamated Copper rose 4⅛. Westinghouse Electric first preferred sold at an advance of 11, Lackawanna 10, and New York, Chicago & St. Louis 4.

A Woman's Crowning Glory

Is her hat, that is if it is the right kind of ahat. Our hats are the right kind. We are just as much interested in fitting you out with a satisfactory hat as you are yourself. Our aim is not only to sell you a hat, but to please you so well that you will come back when you want another one. Our showing is larger, we keep in touch with the very newest millinery ideas and our prices are reasonable; what more can you ask?

It's High Time

To think about your cold weather needs. Are you prepared for the coming of Jack Frost? Our underwear stock for men, women and children is complete and we offer excellent values. We have prices to fit all purses and at every price the very best qualities obtainable. Don't take our word for it; come and see.

Blankets

We offer for your choosing a splendid stock of blankets ranging from the cheapest cotton fleeced to the finest wool. We start the cotton ones at 50c and up to $2.50 a pair; wool and cotton mixed at special low prices, $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 a pair. Strictly all pure wool blankets at $5.00, $5.50, $6.00 and up to $15.00 a pair.

Redfern Whalebone Corsets

There is much to know about corset models this season. There is a nicety in the adjustment that has not been needful before. To fit is one thing—to fit and create is another. These are the essentials in corset selection this season. The figure must be made and, in the vernacular of the day, "it is up to" the corset to build the base. Slenderness is the proper contour, rather straight lines—that is, over the hips—the waist, of course, round and small as compatible with preserving the proportions.

We THOUGHT for you and actually have the make of corsets that combine THE essentials. These models are here this week in full array and we but await the opportunity to show them to you. All our salespeople are trained in corsetry and are qualified to serve you well. The range of prices is from $3.00 TO $15.00 PER PAIR.

FRIDAY, NOV. 6, 1908.

CITY BREVITIES.

Miss Louisa Kappel has taken a position with the Home Telephone company.

K. K. Sloan went to Knox, Ind., yesterday in response to a telegram telling of his mother's death.

Nicholas Merz, of 433 West DeWald street, underwent an operation at St. Joseph's hospital for appendicitis yesterday.

W. H. Bursch, who underwent an operation recently, is reported to be improving very satisfactorily. He is connected with the S. F. Bowser company.

A new freight elevator with a capacity of 2,000 pounds is being installed in the establishment of Howenstein & Crouse on East Columbia street.

A concert will be given some time during the latter part of this month at Van Wert, O., by the Dudley Buck male chorus, composed of about thirty Fort Wayne young men.

The small boy was tempted yesterday to venture upon Reservoir lake with his skates, but investigation showed that the layer of ice was too thin to bear any substantial weight. The ice was the first of the season and it will require only a few more days of such weather as that of yesterday to permit of skating.

A pair of our Glasses will please you more than as if your favorite candidate had been elected. Dallas F. Green, Optometrist, Arcade.

Baking Her Brain

What housekeeper has not worked over her old range until her face became aflame, her head overheated and her entire bodily strength exhausted. Here comes one of the superb features of the STEWART STEEL RANGE. It cooks and bakes with a minimum of fuel by reason of its scientific construction. Its asbestos linings prevents the radiation of heat, keeping it inside to do the work. One can open the oven door bareheaded when baking. Stewart women are cool headed; a cool head means a healthy body. Ten per cent. Discount on all Stoves this week.
